OFFICIAL NEWS PRETORIA TAKEN

Lord Roberts Sends the News to the London War Office This Morning

WAS PRACTICALLY NO DEFENSE

Beyond a Few Skirmishes to Cover the Flight of the Transvaal Leaders

BEFORE ADVANCE OF BRITISH.

London, June 5.—(Special.)—The war office officially announced this morning that a dispatch had just been received from Lord Roberts stating that British troops had entered Pretoria.

This is the first authentic news received from Pretoria since the cable announced that Lord Roberts had entered Johannesburg. The original reports that Roberts was expected in the Boer capital last Friday seem to have been premature, although the reports then received that the Boers were preparing for flight seem to have been well founded.

Instead, however, of an unopposed march from the Rand to the capital, Roberts encountered several commands of skirmishers who harassed and delayed his advance until the Transvaal leaders were well out of danger. This, however, in no way detracts from the ability shown by the British commander in his operations. His aim was to be sure and safe. He knew he had matters in his hand and could afford to take enough time to make the victory complete. To this end he sent out six columns all converging upon Pretoria, and these headed by the cavalry divisions as scouts made all danger of an ambush or trap out of the question. Meanwhile with his customary reticence "Bobs" wasted no words in cabling promises or bulletins. He waited until he had news and this morning he cabled that his forces had occupied the burgher city.

Despite all rumors to the contrary it is not believed that there will be much if any actual warfare from now on. A few irreconcilables may take to the hills and wage a guerilla warfare upon the conquerors. This was to be expected and will not affect the outcome. Even Kruger himself has no control over these men, and he cannot be held responsible for their actions.

It was reported from Lorenzo Marques late this afternoon that Kruger had embarked upon the Dutch cruiser Freisland and was now on his way to Holland.

RETURNED HOME.

BALKED AT A RED HOT STOVE

With a Steaming Kettle on Top, Did Constable Miller's Aids And

EVICION WAS POSTPONED

Mrs. Dawson Retains Possession of the Home but the Enemy Is Preparing

FOR ANOTHER ATTACK SOON.

Some time ago Mrs. Ellen O'Connor commenced a forcible detention action against Mrs. Dawson. The case was heard, Mrs. O'Connor secured judgment and a writ of restitution was issued.

The usual notice was served and Mrs. Dawson was given a few days over time to get out of the house, and Constable Miller even went so far as to get her another house and take a teamster out to her home in Starkey's lane to move her, but she wouldn't go. Yesterday afternoon the constable secured the services of two able bodied men and going to the home of Mrs. Dawson prepared to set her goods out in the street.

Mrs. Dawson is a judicious woman and when the party arrived at her home she had the stove red hot and plenty of hot water. The two able bodied men grabbed two chairs and carried them out on the street, but Mrs. Dawson didn't say a word and never made a threat. The two able bodied men kept their eyes on that stove, held a hurried conversation and then carried the two chairs back into the house and resigned their positions, as they didn't like the looks of that stove. Miller could not do anything without their help and he quit after Mrs. Dawson had promised to move last evening. She didn't move and this morning Miller received word that if he wanted to get her out of the house he would have to put her goods in the street. He will endeavor to secure two good men with lots of courage and get possession of that house if he can.

A GAS EXPLOSION CAUSES EXCITEMENT

Allison's Stove Blown to Pieces and Chimney Bricks Scattered.

AN UNSUCCESSFUL EXPERIMENT

With a Hot Plate Results In an Unexpectedly Hot Time Yesterday.

NARROW ESCAPE OF OCCUPANTS

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Allison, who reside at 198 Fourth street, were experimenting with a hot plate yesterday afternoon, but the experiment was not a success, and it is almost miraculous that they escaped being seriously injured.

Mr. Allison is not a plumber by trade, but he undertook to place a hot plate on top of his kitchen stove without the assistance of a plumber. Here is where he made his mistake. He succeeded in making a good job of it and the gas in the hot plate had been turned on and he and his wife were watching it with evident satisfaction when a terrific explosion took place, and hot plate, stove lids and stove arose before their astonished eyes. They lost no time in getting on the outside of the house, where they decided that they had failed to turn the gas off in the stove before they lit the gas in the hot plate.

They had no trouble in deciding that this had been a grievous oversight when they gazed on the ruins of their stove and hot plate a few minutes later in company with a large crowd of neighbors that had collected.

The damage of the explosion was not entirely confined to the stove. Bricks from the chimney flew in every direction and the neighbors were kept busy for a short time dodging bricks which alighted in their yards, and they made straight runs to get in their houses. The explosion sounded like the report of an eight-inch gun and was plainly heard in the vicinity of Market street and in a few minutes a large crowd had collected to see what it all meant and if an earthquake had taken place.

The strangest and most fortunate part of the whole affair is the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Allison escaped any injuries beyond severe shocks to their nervous systems.

ANOTHER CASE OF HYDROPHOBIA

Tramp Dog Visits the Farm of
Frank Glenn at West Point.

BIT HORSE, DOG AND MAN

And Was Promptly Shot—Bitten
Dog Shows Signs of Rabies
and Glenn

GOES TO PASTEUR HOSPITAL.

Some weeks since there appeared on the farm of Frank Glenn, near West Point, some seven miles distant from East Liverpool, a tramp canine, which attacked and bit a farm dog, a horse, and the young proprietor of the farm, Frank Glenn, a bright and intelligent young man, some twenty-two years of age, a nephew of Dr. Williams, this city.

The dog tramp ended his days right there, shot to death by one of the men on the farm, and no further attention was given the matter, as there was no thought of the wanderer being a mad dog. On Saturday last Glenn's dog gave unmistakable evidence of madness, and the young farmer captured him and brought him to his uncle in this city. The animal was confined in a box in a stable, and on Sunday last it was definitely settled that hydrophobia was the trouble, as the dog had spasm after spasm, the symptoms answering the dread disease exactly.

Frank Glenn left for New York city last night for the purpose of taking treatment at the Pasteur hospital. He will remain there for the next few weeks, and it is earnestly hoped that the treatment may prove efficacious.

Dr. Williams is intensely interested in the case, as is but natural, and he is paying close attention to the dog that is now imprisoned in our city.

The bitten horse has as yet given no evidence of rabies, but it is being closely watched and will be killed if necessary.

TILL THE YEAR 1840.

A Few of the Soldiers of the Civil War
May Last, Says Commissioner Evans.

Veterans of the Civil War are dying off at the rate of about 3 1-3 per cent per annum. Commissioner of Pensions Evans estimates that there are about 925,000 survivors of the Civil War. Of this number there were on the pension rolls last year 749,467. During the year 24,787 pensioned veterans died. This number is slightly more than 3 1-3 per cent. Assuming that the death rate among those not pensioned is the same as the pensioners the total number of veterans who died during the year would be about 30,755.

Mr. Evans estimates that the average age of the veterans who still survive is about 59 years. The last survivor of the war of 1812 died last summer, 75 years after the close of the war. At the same rate there will probably be a few survivors of the Civil War still living in 1940.

Census of Old Soldiers in Ohio.

Columbus, June 5.—The first report of the census of old soldiers and sailors residing in Ohio, which, by a new law, is taken by the assessors, has reached the office of the adjutant general. It comes from Carroll county, and shows that there are in that county 351 such old soldiers and sailors. The names are arranged alphabetically, and the data given of each man are such as name, rank, company, regiment, battery or ship, and name of the war engaged in. The law, as it stands, makes no arrangement for the publication of these names, but that will be done ultimately. As it stands the lists will afford state statistics that could not be found anywhere else.

NEW RULES

Adopted by the State Board of Health
Relating to Transportation of Dead.

Columbus, June 5.—The state board of health is sending out circulars giving the new rules of the department governing the transportation of dead bodies. The rules are the most stringent yet promulgated, and were adopted to lessen as much as possible the spread of contagion.

Copies of the rules will be sent to the boards of health, railway and express companies, undertakers and health officers.

In cases where death is caused by bubonic plague, smallpox, cholera, yellow fever or typhus fever the shipment of the corpse is forbidden. The remains of those dying of diphtheria and scarlet fever may be transported in a hermetically sealed casket after having been thoroughly disinfected. The disinfecting process is also required in many other diseases less virulent than those cited.

Persons accompanying dead bodies must not wear clothing which has been exposed to contagion. The rules become effective on July 1.

SONS OF VETERANS.

Arrangements Being Made For the Annual Encampment
at Springfield.

Springfield, June 5.—(Special)—Arrangements for the coming state encampment of the Sons of Veterans in this city are progressing. The business sessions will be held in the council chamber and headquarters will be in rooms 42 and 44 Arcade. One of the important considerations to come before this meeting is a resolution providing that hereafter the state meetings of the Sons of Veterans shall be held at the same time and place with the state encampment of the G. A. R. Should this resolution pass, Bellefontaine will secure the meeting for 1901, as the G. A. R. has arranged to hold its encampment in that city.

PRONOUNCED CURED.

Institute.

He was pronounced entirely cured and looked well and hearty. Though but 15 years old he made the homeward journey alone.

THE CHICAGO TEMPLE.

PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF
TRUSTEES IN OUR CITY.

The Women of the Nation are Determined That the Debt Shall Disappear.

The temple in Chicago is again attracting much attention all over this land, and the Women's Christian Temperance union is determined, God helping the members thereof, to wipe out the indebtedness hanging over the edifice which Frances Willard loved so well. The building is worth between six and eight hundred thousand dollars, and is situated at the corner of La Salle and Monroe streets. Marshall Field, a wealthy resident of Chicago, came to the rescue with an offer of a contribution of one hundred thousand dollars, provided that the women of the organization would secure sufficient money to wipe out the remaining indebtedness by January 1, 1900. The women made heroic efforts, but failed. Mr. Field then extended the limit of his offer to January 1, 1901, and the members of part of the organization are doing heroic battle to raise the required sum, now less than eighty thousand dollars.

Mrs. Matilda B. Carse, president of the board of trustees of the temple, was in East Liverpool yesterday afternoon, and accompanied by Mrs. Aten, of Wellsville, and Mrs. Emma Palmer, this city, visited a number of leading and wealthy citizens yesterday and solicited subscriptions in the name of God and our common humanity, as the understanding is that if the temple is cleared of debt it will become a wonderful power against the rum traffic and the license curse of the nation, as it will command in rentals over one hundred thousand dollars annually, paying all running expenses and leaving a snug sum in the treasury for the purpose of prosecuting the temperance cause.

The ladies received a number of contributions in the sum of one hundred dollars, and have the promise of others to give at least the same sum, while one well known and popular citizen may give from five hundred to one thousand dollars, in the name of his mother, a noble Christian and temperance worker in her time in this city.

Mrs. Carse was in our city but about three hours, having an urgent appointment in the city of Philadelphia and being compelled to leave on the 6:34 train last evening. She expressed herself as much pleased with our city and its citizens, and promises to call again in the not distant future. She is a woman of fine and commanding presence, a fluent talker and conversationalist, interested heart and soul and body and mind in the wiping out of the debt now standing against the temple, believing that the work will be blessed by the Master and that donors to the fund will receive blessings and rewards, even upon this earth.

NO ACTION.

Finance Committee Didn't Act on Rural Lane Improvement.

The finance committee yesterday did not act on the Rural Lane improvement from Jackson street to West Market street. The reason is that a petition is being circulated to have the alley paved through to Franklin street and it is the wish that the improvement be made all at one time.

Potts on Campbell.

Lisbon Patriot.
Jim Campbell, once governor of Ohio, says: "I want all reference to the Chicago platform left out." Jimmy is decidedly a back number. He worked and voted for McKinley in 1896 and he will do the same this year. There is more likelihood of Jimmy being caught up in a whirlwind and carried to heaven than the Ohio Democracy will trample upon the Chicago platform. Jim Campbell is an impecunious cuss and he is just waiting for a job from some millionaire syndicate. There is no proper place for him in the ranks of Democracy.

PLEASANT STREET.

Council Last Night Passed the Resolution to Improve the Street.

It was decided, however, to improve the street and council passed the resolution last night. The city's share of the improvement is $368.80.

Who would think there was insanity behind a drop of water? But there is. It was a favorite torture in the old days to fasten the victim where water should slowly drip on his forehead. In a little while he was a howling maniac.

Women do not, as a rule, realize how the steady
drains which sometimes afflict them must at last re-act on the mind. Sometimes, it is only fretfulness, irritability or peevishness. At other times the condition passes beyond unreasonableness to irrationality.

With the relief of the body, from disease, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives also a cheerful mind and contented spirit. When the drains and pains are stopped the mind soars up like a balloon from which dead weight has been cast out. Mothers who never knew a happy moment when the birth hour confronted them, and younger women doomed each month to a period of mental depression as well as physical suffering, have found a perfect cure by the use of "Favorite Prescription." It contains no alcohol, neither opium cocaine or other form of narcotic.

"I suffered with female weakness about eight years—tried several doctors but derived no benefit until I began using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. John Green, of Danville, Boyle Co., Ky. "This medicine was recommended to me by other patients. I have taken six bottles and I feel like another person."

"I took your medicine six months and feel now like a new person," writes Miss Annie Stephens, of Belleville, Wood Co., W. Va. "Have no headache, no backache, no pain anywhere.
I took seven bottles of Doctor
Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and seven bottles of his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I think there is no medicine like Doctor Pierce's. I can't speak highly enough of your medicine for it has done me so much good. I don't feel tired as I used to, nor sick. I feel well and think there is no medicine equal to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are graduated to the sensitive system of women.

An Echo from the Junk Shop

By the Repair Man.

Once you were pure
As the beautiful snow:
But thou hast fallen!
Now your dazzling splendor
Which glitters in the summer sun
Pleads to the bargain hunter
Who will also fall.
Then his breath will come
In hard blue pants—
Like the hired man's—
And he will consign thee
To the junk shop
And buy an Orient.
Poor Bargain Bike!
Thou art no more fit
To be called a bicycle
Than these lines are
To be called a poem.

The Orient Bicycle will drop its price when, like

The first young man saw it there and recognized it and then all kinds of trouble seemed likely to occur. Officer Hamilton arrived on the scene, the ring was restored to the young lady and it may be the trouble is all over.

The Ceramic Art In Russia.

In a description of the inaugurating ceremony of the first ceramic furnace near St. Petersburg—viz: at Preobraschensky—a correspondent says that although it is well known one must be acquainted with the customs and peculiarities of a people before one can establish in their midst an industry, even if very much wanted, that will yield results commensurate with the expectations that may be legitimately based upon the local needs of the article and the local facilities for producing it, such knowledge of the people and their ways is particularly requisite in dealing with Russia. This new ceramic factory is modeled on the best factories of England and Germany, but in Germany alone has the machinery been got for its use. The opening ceremony, which was attended by the religious dignitaries of the neighborhood, was a grand success, although there was a certain unexpected item of amusement in so far as when they started the brick making machine, omitting to bring into operation the cutting apparatus, the machine delivered its produce in metric rather than in numerical measure. However, the intervention of the manager, in his silk hat and white gloves brought about the normal action of the machine, and the day otherwise passed off successfully, and constituted another proof that Russia, with other civilized nations, is seeking successfully to be independent of the old recognized centers of industries for its supplies.

A DAY IN WALL STREET.

Some Speculation In Sugar—Walt-suntide Holidays In London Prevented Index of Foreign Market.

NEW YORK, June 5.—There was some speculation in sugar Monday based on the dividend prospects. It was expected that the quarterly dividend would be declared Monday, but it was announced during the trading that action would be deferred until today. Intimations were given out, however, that the executive committee had already determined upon a  $1\frac{1}{2}$  per cent dividend for the quarter, maintaining the same rate as the last dividend. The price was run up to 119 $\frac{1}{4}$  by this rumor, but later fell back below Saturday's price, closing a shade off on the day. The Whitsuntide holidays in London and on the continent left the market without any index of foreign conditions. Some sentimental depression was caused, however, by the delay in the occupation of Pretoria and by suggestions of money market difficulties in Berlin. The bears professed some uneasiness also over possible complications in the far east.

The closing of the Illinois Steel company's mills in South Chicago made the steel stocks especially weak early in the day, but the tone of the group became steadier in the late weakness of the market. A rise of 3 points in New Jersey Central caused a temporary hardening of the coalers, but it did not hold. The heavy loan expansion by the banks disclosed by Saturday bank statement, bringing the loan item to the largest figure in the history of the clearing house, was unexplained by news or any special transaction. In this connection discussion was caused by the dispatch from Berlin to the Associated Press, reporting a project by German financiers to introduce the imperial 3 per cent bonds upon the American market, owing to the great abundance of capital in the United States. The treasury department's estimate of the amount of money in circulation on June 1 shows an increase for the United States of $14,162,408 for the month, in spite of the gold exports of over $10,000,000 and the taking up of the treasury surplus of nearly $5,000,000.

The prospect of an early resumption of gold receipts from the Transvaal, the expectation that shipments will soon be received from and the Klondike and the high rate of production reported by American mines arouses the discussion as to the future effect on prices of this large supply of money metal. The small brokerage failure announced during the day was without effect on the market.

The bond market was dull and irregular. Total sales par value \$1,180,000. U. S. old 4s coupon declined  $\frac{1}{4}$  and registered and 5s  $\frac{1}{8}$  per cent. The 2s advanced  $\frac{1}{8}$  per cent.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, June 5.—Light country acceptances to Chicago bids and a good shipping demand resulted in a strong corn market Monday. July closing  $\frac{1}{2}$  @  $\frac{5}{8}$  c improved. Wheat was helped by corn and some damage claims from the northwest, July closing  $\frac{1}{8}$  @  $\frac{1}{4}$  c higher. July oats closed  $\frac{1}{8}$  c better and provisions strong, 10 @ 22 $\frac{1}{2}$  c.

His book, which appeared in 1776, was the first complete and systematic treatise on political economy, and it remains an authority upon this subject.

ANNUAL SESSION HELD LAST NIGHT

The Riverview Cemetery Association Held Their 18th Annual Meeting.

THE REPORTS WERE READ

That of Secretary J. M. Kelly Showed That a Total of 1556 Interments Were Made.

TRUSTEES ELECTED OFFICERS.

The Riverview Cemetery association held their 18th annual meeting at city hall last evening.

The reports of President David Boyce, Secretary J. M. Kelly, Treasurer N. G. Macrum and Superintendent Whitaker were read and ordered filed. The report of Secretary J. M. Kelly showed that 65 lots had been sold during the year and 138 interments made from June, 1899, to June, 1900. The total number of interments from July 5, 1883, to the present time has been 1,556. The recent purchase of 12 and 60-100 acres gives the cemetery association a total of 73 and 80-100 acres.

The vacancies in the membership caused by the removal of Homer Laughlin and H. A. Weeks from the city were filled by the election of George Burford and Frank E. Oyster.

The following trustees were then selected to serve for a period of three years: David Boyce, J. H. Simms, N. G. Macrum, J. C. Thompson and J. D. West. There are 15 directors, but all are elected to serve for a period of three years and this leaves five to be elected every year.

The association then adjourned and the trustees organized by electing David Boyce president, J. M. Kelly secretary, N. G. Macrum treasurer and Mr. Whitaker superintendent. The executive committee is as follows: David Boyce, Robert Hall, John N. Taylor, John C. Thompson and J. M. Kelly.

A special meeting of the executive committee was held this morning and it was decided to furnish each lot owner with a copy of the rules and a ticket for Sunday admission. Special tickets will be issued for visitors. This action was made necessary on account of the growing evil of Sunday loafing at the cemetery.

ALLIANCE PAPER

Praises the Appearance of the Little Visitors from the Fairmount Children's Home.

Alliance Star.

Superintendent and Mrs. Southworth brought to St. Paul's Lutheran church for the Sunday morning services a delegation of nearly 40 children from the Fairmount home. The party came in a carriage and a large "carryall," the latter drawn by four horses.

The children looked exceedingly bright and attractive in their neat attire and seemed cheerful and happy. They entertained the congregation with some excellent singing, which had the charm that characterizes juvenile voices. The occasion was a most pleasant one for old and young.

SLACK IN TRENTON.

Sanitary Ware Workers are Getting in Only a Portion of Time There.

True American.

The sanitary pottery business, which has been very quiet all summer, is now said to be growing still slacker, and some potteries are only working quarter time.

The Keystone is doing better than many. The men there, it is understood, are working about three-quarters time.

The executive committee, N. B. of O. P. has warned kilnmen, sagger-makers and sanitary pressers away from the Ironsides pottery at Bordentown, where the strike of the kilnmen is still on.

Tall Figures of a Tall Man.

Alliance Star.

Rev. Dr. Earl D. Holtz, in a Memorial Day address at East Liverpool, said:

"There were more than two million men engaged on the Union side in the civil war. This number is so large that if they were to march by a given point it would take 118 days, marching day and night, for them to pass."

In a column of soldiers marching in files of four, the usual order, the rule of calculation is 5000 men to the mile. This allows four feet between files. General Sherman states this in his "Memories" and his authority will not be questioned. Two million men in column would extend a distance of 400 miles. When on the road two and one-half miles an hour is a very easy marching gait. At that speed the entire column would pass a given point in 160 hours, or, "marching day and night" 6 days and 16 hours. Our genial friend, Dr. Holtz, is pretty tall, himself, but his figures in this case are seventeen times too high.

And They Were Married.

Lisbon, June 5.—(Special).—About a month ago Miss Melinda Grice, of Salem, had William Dixon, of Alliance, arrested on a serious charge. The young man was lodged in jail here and yesterday Miss Grice came here and secured a marriage license. The sheriff brought Dixon to the probate judge's office and the pair were married by Squire Riddle.

A WOMAN'S BACK.

The Aches and Pains Will Disappear If the Advice of This East Liverpool Citizen Is Followed.

A woman's back has many aches and pains.

Most times 'tis the kidneys' fault. Backache is really kidney ache; That's why Doan's kidney pills cure it.

Many East Liverpool women know this.

Read what one has to say about it; Mrs. Carlina White, of 225 Railroad street, East End, says: "I used Doan's kidney pills, and found great relief from the treatment, although I am 70 years of age, and had about given up all hope of ever being helped. I took medicines. My back ached just the same; grew stiff and lame when sitting long or when lying in bed, and sharp twinges of pain and other symptoms convinced me my kidneys were out of order. Always on the lookout for anything that might bring relief, when I heard Doan's kidney pills so highly spoken of I got a box at the W. & W. pharmacy. After using them for a short time I could plainly notice the good effect they were causing. I continued some time longer and gradually but surely improved. I found Doan's kidney pills a splendid remedy, and advise others to try them, feeling confident if they do so they will have no cause to regret it.

TO BE TAKEN TO CLEVELAND.

Emmett Greene was arrested yesterday afternoon by Officer Wood and when he arrived at city hall charges of being drunk and disorderly and abusing a horse were placed against him. He was fined $11.60, paid the amount and was released.

J. E. Webster was arrested yesterday afternoon by Officer Aufderheide. He was very drunk and hardly knew his own name. He is still in jail awaiting a hearing.

Patrick Mooney filled up with bad booze last night and went to sleep in a doorway on Sixth street. Now Patrick had no business sleeping in a doorway, and when Officer Mahony spied him he called the patrol and Mooney was given a hurry up ride to the city jail. He has not had a hearing yet.

William Crosby, who assaulted Jack Cannon Saturday night, is still in jail and no action will be taken in his case until it is ascertained just how seriously Cannon is injured.

A telegram received yesterday stated that the United States marshal for this district would be here today, and would take McCormick back to Cleveland with him.

TO BE AMICABLY ADJUSTED

The Pottery Situation is Being Simplified and Trouble May be Averted.

The situation in regard to the pottery trouble is growing lighter every day, and the likelihood of a strike is less now than at any time since the beginning of the trouble. While the manufacturers state that they are not disposed to make any concession in the matter, it is not believed that they will hold strictly to their point if the men do their part towards making an amicable settlement.

Kilnmen's union No. 9 have called a special meeting for tonight to determine what stand they will take.

President A. S. Hughes said he believed that both parties to the controversy realized the results which were sure to follow either being unwilling to make any concession and that a settlement would soon be effected.

The executive board of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters is holding a meeting this afternoon.

TWO WEDDINGS.

Marriage of Clement McQuilken and Miss Mary Andrews—Sloan-Anderson.

At 1 o'clock this afternoon a quiet but pretty home wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Andrews on Seventh street, when their daughter, Miss Mary Andrews, was married to Clement McQuilken. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a few close relatives of the contracting parties by Rev. J. C. Taggart, of the First U. P. church.

Mr. McQuilken is a well known and successful business man of this city. Miss Andrews is a young lady quite popular among the members of her social circle.

Mr. and Mrs. McQuilken left this afternoon for a tour of several weeks to Detroit, Mt. Clemens and other points on the lakes.

William W. Sloan and Miss Ella May Anderson will be married tomorrow evening at 5 o'clock at the home of the bride's father on Lisbon street. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. J. C. Taggart.

Mr. Sloan is a member of the firm of Watson & Sloan. The bride is well known in East Liverpool social circles.

Mr. and Mrs. Sloan will leave tomorrow evening for a trip in the east, after which they will be at home to their friends in East Liverpool.

FIXED IT UP.

COUNCIL MADE THE FRANCHISE LEGAL.

This Time It Is a Sure Thing That a Majority of Property Owners Have Signed Petition.

Council at the special meeting last night amended section 5 of the ordinance granting the East Liverpool Street Railway company their franchise over certain streets to Pleasant Heights, as a majority of the property owners had signed a new petition.

The amendment also provides that the railway company shall dedicate to the city a right of way on Pleasant street for street purposes and not simply grant the right of way for 25 years.

The petitions read to council last night were signed by property holders representing a frontage on West Market street of 1,521 feet out of a total of 2,355.22 feet. On Sheridan avenue the petitioners represented a frontage of 1,455 feet out of a total frontage of 2,238.86.

The passage of the amendment will probably have an effect upon the injunction cases, as one of the grounds upon which it was intended to ask for a permanent injunction was that a majority of the property owners had not signed the petition.

FIRST CAR.

An Old Car Was Started Out East Market Street This Morning.

A street car was run off the Sixth street line onto the East Market street line this morning and the trolley wire is now strung along that street.

Clay Production.

The statistics collected and published by the United States geological survey state that the value of the clays produced and used in 1898 is estimated to be $10,000,000. This is divided into—brick clays, $9,000,000, all other including that of pottery, paper manufacture, etc., $1,000,000. The fact that nearly all brick and tile makers use their own clay makes it extremely difficult to arrive at the value of this raw material. The value of the clay products, including pottery, in 1898 was $71,597,380 as compared with $62,359,991 in 1897, an increase of $9,237,389, or 14.81 per cent.

Medals For Cops.

Turned the Joke to Account.

Some friends once invited the late Tiny Waterman to their shooting club at Kings Lake, near St. Louis, and the first afternoon they stationed Tiny in a ducking tank, or sink box, where they well knew ducks had never been seen. He took the joke good naturedly, and that night at dinner he pulled a shell out of his pocket and tossed it on the table with the remark that he "thought he had put all of his shells away." Most naturally one of the diners cut the shell open with his pocketknife, disclosing the contents. Tiny seemed astounded at the number of "bullets," as he called them, and asked how many were in a shell. Of course no one could enlighten him, so he said, "If you fellows who are hunters really don't know, it seems to me that it is a good betting proposition."

"Good scheme," exclaimed one of his hosts. "Let's make it a dollar each as to who guesses nearest to the actual number in the shell."

"As there is only one bet in this proposition," Tiny suggested, "let's make it $5 a corner," which was agreed to.

Each one wrote on the tablecloth his guess as to the number contained in the shell, and when the pellets were counted it was found that Tiny had guessed the exact number. He accordingly gathered in the $30, and when he had it safely bestowed he casually inquired, "What do you fellows think I was doing in that blamed tank all afternoon?"

A Very Realist Rest.

Adolf Menzel, the German artist, was at one time engaged on a mural decoration. He had rigged up a scaffolding in his studio, on which his model was requested to stand. For two long hours the poor "poseur" stood up aloft in a most fatiguing posture. Menzel in the meantime worked at his sketch, heedless of the fact that his model was growing tired.

At length the model found it necessary to speak. "Herr professor," said he, "how about a recess?"

Menzel apologized profusely for his forgetfulness. "Certainly, certainly, my dear sir," said he. "Come down and rest yourself a bit."

The model had clambered from the scaffolding to the ladder, which led down from it to the studio floor.

"Stop!" cried the artist suddenly. "That pose is fine! Don't move a muscle!"

And once more the model was forced into strained rigidity, while the enthusiastic draftsman set about sketching him.

At the end of half an hour Menzel looked up from his work. "There," said he, "that will do nicely! Get back on the scaffold. We have had our rest. Let us get back to work again."

What the model said is left to the reader's imagination.

How Mayne Reid Won His Bride.

It was through his novel, "The Sculp Hunters," that Captain Mayne Reid won a bride. He was 30 years old when he met a damsel of 13, with whom he at once fell in love. The child took no notice of him, but he gave her the story to read, as effective a manner of courting in this nineteenth century as ever was Othello's in an earlier one. Two years later the young lady was at a public meeting where Captain Reid spoke on behalf of the Polish refugees. "An electric thrill seemed to pass through me as he entered the room," she said afterward, and when the meeting was over she went up to him. "I leave for London on the next train," he said hurriedly. "Please send me your address."

"I do not know where," she replied with some embarrassment. He instantly handed out his card and was gone. A formal little note followed: "Dear Captain Reid—As you asked me to send you my address, I do so." By return of post came the answer: "Only say that you love me and I will be with you at once," and then the reply, "I think I do love you."

We know of no worse separation than to be in a hurry and find our path obstructed by some one who is very slow.—Atchison Globe.

DR. WILLIAMS DROPS DEAD

In Justice Rose's Court While Giving His Testimony In a Suit Being Heard.

While Justice J. N. Rose was hearing the case of Dr. L. O. Williams vs. Maggie McDole, a suit for professional services this afternoon Dr. Williams, who was on the stand, suddenly threw himself back in his chair and gasped for breath.

Squire Rose hastened to get some water, but seeing the doctor was in serious danger hurriedly called in Dr. Clark next door. Before Dr. Clark could arrive, however, Dr. Williams was dead. Paralysis of the heart was the cause.

Those present say that Dr. Williams was not at all excited before the seizure. He was giving his testimony in a cool and collected manner and seemed in his usual health.

He leaves a wife and several children. He was a member of the city school board, township physician and well and favorably known to most of the residents of the city.

Trapped the Trapper.

In "Sketches of Life in the Golden State," Colonel Albert S. Evans narrates the rash exploit of an over-sanguine bear hunter:

A venturesome Yankee came to Santa Barbara some years ago and soon became an adept at throwing the lasso. Hearing the Mexican cowboys talk of lassoing the grizzly bear, he decided to show them what he could do in that line if he ever got a chance.

One day he came upon a grizzly in a favorable locality. He threw the lasso with skillful aim and reined back his trembling horse to give the bear an astonished, when the reata—which is always attached to the pommel of the saddle—came up taut.

Judge of the man's astonishment when that bear quietly assumed a sitting posture, took hold of the lasso and began to draw it in hand over hand!

The hapless descendant of the pilgrim fathers stuck to the horse and saddle until he saw the slack all drawn in and the bear and the horse coming rapidly together. Then, in a panic, he descended and ran for a tree, abandoning the horse to its fate.

Two skillful men, operating from opposite sides, can master a bear and choke him between them, but with only one man, one horse and one bear, it is another story.

Sty Joking in the Pulpit.

"Before I went to college," said a minister of this city, "I did supply work on a certain charge one summer. In the Methodist church we had service morning and evening. There was a Presbyterian church in the village, and the pastor from another village supplied it, preaching there once a Sunday in the afternoon. I went to hear him one afternoon. He was a college bred man and was supposed to be away up. When he spied me in the congregation, he came down and asked me to assist in the opening exercises. When we were seated, he asked me to read the first lesson and at the same time announced that it was a certain chapter in the book of Numbers. Just before I was to read I reached up to the desk and took down the Bible and opened at the place. I glanced down over the chapter and saw that it was a mass of unpronounceable names. I knew that he was working a joke on me. He knew that I could not get away with those names. I said nothing, but when the time came I stood up and announced the chapter following and read it.

"When I sat down, he gave me a look, and he got one back. I whispered hoarsely, 'I guess not.' Those were the only words spoken on this subject."—Utica Observer.

BOXERS GET BOLDER.

Murders and Oppression Increase Outside Pekin.

REPORT FROM MINISTER CONGER.

Serious Crisis at Palace—Ultra Conservatives Advocate No Action Against Boxers—Missionary Missing, Another Captured—Five Natives Murdered.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The following cablegram was received at the state department from United States Minister Conger, at Pekin:

"PEKIN, June 4.

"Outside of Pekin, the murders and persecutions by the 'Boxers' seem to be on the increase. The Pao Ting Fu railway is temporarily abandoned. Work on the Pekin and Hankow line is stopped. All foreigners have fled. The Chinese government seems either unwilling or unable to suppress the trouble. The troops show no energy in attacking the 'boxers.'"

"CONGER."

Grave as these advices are, they have not induced the state department to vary the line of action it has laid down. If occasion should arise Admiral Kempff might be reinforced to almost any extent likely to be needed. The state department did not contemplate sending more troops.

The marines are employed simply in the protection of the United States legation and consulates, and for the assistance of such American citizens as may be in jeopardy.

PEKING, Sunday, June 3.—A serious crisis exists at the palace. The ultra-conservative party advocates not taking repressive measures, urging the dowager empress to allow the "Boxers" to finish the work of driving the foreigners out of the country, the moderate party, led by Prince Ching, representing the serious danger of provoking a conflict with the powers. It is impossible to confirm or deny the report, but significant indications of the feeling of the government towards foreigners are contained in the attempt to arrest Lin, Chinese manager of the Peking syndicate; Kia, chief of the Shan-Si commercial bureau, and Fan, a leading banker of Shan-Si, on the ground that they are "dangerous characters," but in reality because they are connected with new British enterprises. Fortunately all of them were absent, and they have not yet been arrested. The British minister, Sir Claude MacDonald, has addressed a note to the tsung li yamen, demanding why the arrests were ordered.

TIENTSIN, June 5.—Huang Tsun, the next station to Feng Tai, was burned and a bridge was damaged.

Traffic between Tientsin and Peking was suspended. It was reported that Pao Ting Fu was attacked. Mr. Robinson, of the North China Mission (not Mr. Stevenson, of the Church of England Mission at Yem Ching, as cabled previously), was missing and five native Christians had been murdered at Zang Ching. Mr. Norman, of the same mission, was captured at Wu Chia Ying, about two miles from Yang Ching and was in great danger.

REFORMED PRESBYTERIANS.

Synod Decided to Meet May 29, 1901
In Pittsburg—Aid R commended
For Starving India.

CEDARVILLE, O., June 5.—When the Reformed Presbyterian synod met it was decided to meet next year at Pittsburg on May 29, in the Eighth Street Reformed Presbyterian church. The synod passed a resolution recommending the congregation of the church to aid the starving millions of India. A resolution was adopted declaring that the substitution of hymns for psalms in public worship is the same as the substitution of a work of prose for some other book of the Bible.

The committee on systematic benevolence reported, urging the members of the church to give one-tenth of their income to the work of the church. Dr. J. W. Spruill, of Allegheny City, chairman of the committee of the Sabbath schools and Young People's societies reported 10,449 scholars in the Sabbath schools and that the Young People's societies are doing work.

DAUGHTER OF ROGERS MARRIED.

United in Marriage to William R. Coe at Her Home in New York.

NEW YORK, June 5.—The marriage of Miss Mae Rogers, daughter of H. H. Rogers, president of the Standard Oil company, with William R. Coe, of this city, was solemnized at the bride's home, 26 East Fifty-seventh street. As the Rogers family is in mourning the ceremony was privately performed, and the reception limited to relatives and a few close friends.

The bride is 25 years of age. When hardly more than 17 years old she eloped with Joseph Cooper Mott, who was then 19 years old, and was married. About two years later she secured a divorce.

HEROIC RAILROADERS.

Express Messenger and Engineer Prevented Robbers From Looting An Express Car in Texas.

LONGVIEW, Tex., June 5.—The north-bound "cannon ball" train on the International and Great Northern was held up near Price's switch, about 60 miles south of this city.

A pile of ties was placed on the track, and as the train came to a stop three masked men climbed into the engine. They forced the engineer and fireman to uncouple the mail, baggage and express cars and pull about two miles from the remainder of the train.

The robbers made Fireman Love break a hole in the end of the express car. Love was forced in, and Messenger Rutherford fired past his head barely missing the robbers, who then undertook to kill Rutherford by shooting through the side of the car.

In the confusion, Engineer Rich crawled away to his engine, pulled the throttle wide open and left the robbers behind.

TO TRANSFER NEEDY TO CUBA.

Preparations Were Being Made by the Federal Authorities.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Requisition papers having been signed in the case of Charles F. W. Neely, accused of having embezzled postal funds of the United States government in Cuba, preparations are being made by the federal authorities for the transfer of the prisoner to Havana.

It is expected that habeas corpus proceedings will be brought in Neely's behalf, and Assistant United States Attorney Baldwin says that under the original charge framed under sections 1 and 2 of the act of March 3, 1875, he can be tried in this district.

AN ARMY OF 40,000.

Regulars to Be Kept In the Philippines.

THE VOLUNTEERS TO COME HOME.

Movement Expected to Commence Early In November, According to General Corbin—Regulars to Be Sent to Take Their Places.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—In order to prevent misapprehension as to the future policy of the war department respecting the military forces in the Philippines, Adjutant General Corbin said there had been no change of policy since the departure of General Otis and that none was contemplated. Under the law the entire volunteer army now serving in the Philippines will go out of existence June 30, 1901, and the problem before the war department is how to get the 31,000 men of that army home from the Philippines before the date named, at the same time relieving them with other troops of the regular establishment, so far as possible without loss of military prestige in the Philippines and without material disturbance of the present military organization.

General Corbin says it is proposed to maintain an army of 40,000 regulars in the Philippines so long as required and to do this it will be necessary to draw upon the troops now in Cuba. The army in the Philippines at present numbers about 62,000 men equally divided between regulars and volunteers. All the volunteers are to be brought home and mustered out at the place of enlistment, June 30, next year, and in order to accomplish this with certainty and with the least embarrassment the homeward movement will begin early in the coming November.

In order that there may be no immediate reduction of force under General MacArthur, it has been arranged to send regular troops to the Philippines as rapidly as possible to take the places of the departing volunteers.

10,780 REBELS

REPORTED KILLED.

But General MacArthur Thought the Figures Excessive—2,104 Reported Wounded, but Likely More.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Secretary Root made answer to the senate resolution inquiring as to the number of Philippines killed and wounded and the number of prisoners taken since the insurrection began, by giving the following:

MANILA, June 4.

Adjutant General, Washington:

"With reference to your telegram of 22d ult.: Filipinos killed, 10,780; wounded, 2,104; captured and surrendered, 10,424; number prisoners in our possession, about 2,000. No systematic record Filipino casualties these headquarters. Foregoing, compiled from large number reports, made immediately after engagements, is as close an approximation as now possible owing to wide distribution of troops. More accurate report would take weeks to prepare. Number reported killed probably in excess of accurate figures; number reported wounded probably much less, as Filipinos managed to remove most wounded from field, and comparatively few fell into our hands. Officers of high rank and dangerous, suspicious men have been retained as prisoners; most other men discharged on field as soon as disarmed. Propose to release all but very few prisoners at early date."

"MACARTHUR."

$5,000,000 APPROPRIATED.

House Agreed to Senate Amendment to Aid St. Louis Fair—Some Other Business.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The house agreed to the senate amendment to the sundry civil bill appropriating $5,000,000 for the Louisiana purchase exposition at St. Louis. The house also agreed to the senate item for the Mississippi river, with an amendment reducing the appropriation to $2,250,000 and adding a provision for the preparation of a comprehensive report on the levee system by the Mississippi river commission. With these exceptions, the items of the sundry civil bill still in dispute after the adoption of the partial conference report, were sent back to conference. The disputed items of the District of Columbia bill were agreed to, and the bill went to the president, leaving only four appropriation bills in dispute between the two houses. Mr. Tawney, of Minnesota, was making an effort to delay final adjournment unless action is had on the Grout oleomargarine bill, but he met with no success. Everything, so far as the house is concerned, indicates final adjournment on Wednesday.

CONVERGING ON PRETORIA.

Believed in London That Roberts' Army Was Moving on the Boer Capital.

LONDON, June 5.—Of official intelligence regarding what is transpiring outside Pretoria there is little or nothing. Lord Roberts is silent. Nevertheless, by piecing together items from various correspondents it would seem that Lord Roberts' immediate army is all employed north of Johannesburg, except one brigade which is at Johannesburg and that six columns are converging on Pretoria.

An undated News Agency message from Pretoria, via Lourenço Marques, June 4, said:

"Pretoria is now invested by the British. No resistance will be offered. The city will be surrendered by the burghmaster as soon as a formal demand is made."

This message purports to come in cipher. President Kruger commands the telegraph eastward from Pretoria, and telegraphic news from Pretoria to Lourenço Marques has ceased, but the messages of newspaper correspondents continue to pass to and fro on the railway. The latest to arrive at Lourenço Marques brings events at the Boer capital down to a late hour Friday night. At that time, according to these sources of information, the leaders had quite recovered from the panic and had determined to defend the town.

HE BEGAN ALL RIGHT

BUT THE NEW TENANT DID NOT CARRY OUT HIS PROGRAMME.

He Thought He Could Bluff the Office Elevator Boy, and There Is Where He Made an Awful Mistake—The Boy's Story of His Revenge.

[Copyright, 1900, by C. B. Lewis.]

A few weeks ago, when Mr. Rockaway, the kodak agent, moved into room 68, he took an early opportunity to say to me:

"Sammis, there are owners of skyscrapers, and there are agents and janitors of skyscrapers, but the elevator boy is the real boss."

"Yes, sir, he is," I humbly replied. "If he stands in with the tenant, that tenant is all right; if he don't stand in, then the tenant might as well hunt for another office. I want to stand in with you, Sammis."

"Yes, sir." "You are a widow's son. Here's half a dollar to cheer your mother's lonely heart. You are trying to pay off the gigantic mortgage left on the estate by

THEN SHE STARTED IN TO WRECK THINGS, your father. Here's another half to assist you. This is simply preparatory, Sammis. Quarters and halves and dollars will chink and rattle around here and pass from me to you with astonishing frequency. All you've got to do is to look out for my interests."

"Yes, sir." "Should a woman call here, Sammis—an oldish woman, with red hair and a sharp nose and a voice like a file?" "You are out, of course. She's the woman who wants contributions for the heathen, and you don't want to be bothered."

"Exactly, Sammis! And you are a jewel!" he said as he patted me on the head. "I am always to be out when she calls. You are to discourage her from calling again. You may even hint that I have removed to Chicago or St. Louis. I see you closely scrutinizing my side whiskers, Sammis. Don't you like the color?"

"Yes, sir, but they are false."

"Ah, Sammis, another quarter for the gigantic mortgage. It's a little notion of mine to wear false whiskers for a few weeks, and nothing need be said about it. What we know we know, but we keep mum about it. You trust me; I trust you. We'll make that mortgage look sick in a month or two. Ta, ta, Sammis! I think we understand each other."

I thought so, too, and it was all right for two or three weeks. Mr. Rockaway didn't come down with any more halves, but I didn't lay that up against him. It was what he said and did that hurt my feelings. One day at the fourth floor a lawyer's boy called me a sawed off liar. I stopped the elevator to punch his head and thus was late getting up to answer a call from Mr. Rockaway. He was mad about it, and, taking me by the ear, he said:

"You trifling young monkey, but I'll have no more of this! I've a good mind to report you to the agent and have you bounced! What do you mean by such conduct?"

"I'm sorry, sir." "That makes no difference. From this time out I shall have an eye on you, and you'll either walk chalk or get the bounce. Do you hear me?"

The iron struck home. From that hour I waited and longed for a red-headed, sharp nosed woman to appear. Luck was with me. On the afternoon of the fifth day she walked in and made straight for me and said:

"Bub, I'm looking for a man named Rockaway. I'm his wife."

"Have you got business with him?" I asked.

"I have—strict business. Is there such a man in this building?"

"There is a Mr. Rockaway here, but he's got side whiskers."

"Oh, he has! Well, I'll pull 'em off in three seconds! Take me right up."

I took her up. I am not a bad elevator boy at heart, but a boy in my position has got to maintain his dignity among the tenants. I held the elevator until I saw her enter room 68 and heard the first shock of collision, and then I had business elsewhere. What happened after that was told by the typewriter in Mr. Rockaway's office. When the redheaded woman bounced into the room, she first attacked those beautiful side whiskers, and they were wrecked in a breath. Then she started in to wreck things, and her language was English and her tones loud. She had the whole floor alarmed in two minutes, and the people who rushed in found the typewriter girl hiding under the desk and Mr. Rockaway on the floor and mixed up with broken furniture. It was lively while it lasted, and the redheaded woman had breath enough left to explain that the man on his back was her lawful husband, but had run away from her in Buffalo a year before. He had nothing to say in reply, and when the agent came up and told him that he had better look for other quarters he prepared to move.

I didn't see him until the remains of his office furniture had been sent away. Then he rang for me to take him down. He had not resumed his side whiskers. There were scratches all over his face and neck, a lump on his jaw, and the wildness yet lingered in his eyes. I expected he would threaten or reproach me, but he didn't feel at all that way. On the contrary, there was sadness in his voice and gentleness in his hand as he reached out for a farewell shake and said:

"Sammis, I cannot blame you. I began right, but I did not carry out the programme. I started in to be a father to you and to help lift that gigantic mortgage, but later on I decided that bluff would be the game to work. You saw my bluff and went one better. It was you who brought her up?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you gave my side whiskers away?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, it was my own fault. Office gone, whiskers gone, typewriter gone and the redheaded woman camped on my trail. I am financially ruined, Sammis, and can't say that I have even saved my honor. However, here's my hand, and I bear you no ill will. If I die, I shall forgive you; if I live on, it will be a great moral lesson to me."

That afternoon Mr. Rasher, the agent called me into his office and said:

"Sammis, has your wounded dignity been healed?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then don't take any more redheaded women up in the elevator. Such little affairs as that in room 68 cause gossip and hurt our business."

Just at present our building is as quiet as a graveyard, and I hope it may long remain so. Something may bob up at any moment, however, but if it does it will not be the fault of SAMMIS, the Elevator Boy.

A Chicago Street Car Episode.

Passengers on an east bound Archer avenue car were thrown into a panic one night by the prospect of a holdup. At the sight of a wild eyed man jerking the bell rope and flourishing a huge revolver timid women sought shelter behind brave men.

Quiet was restored when the real cause of the disturbance was learned. Car 1811 had been about to cross the switch tracks at Ashland avenue when the conductor asked the man for his fare. He took a $5 bill and was about to make change when he saw the warning lights ahead.

"Wait a moment," he said and darted ahead with his lantern.

"Stop the car!" roared the excitable passenger, who saw the conductor and his $5 disappearing down the track. "He's got my money!"

The would be "holdup" man had reached the front door when the car flashed past the conductor, who was waiting for the rear platform. The passenger tried to jump from the car, but found it impossible because of the Archer avenue bridge structure. Then he made a mad dash for the rear door, where the conductor met him with a polite "Don't forget your change, sir."—Chicago Record.

THE SERGEANT'S GOLD.

It Never Reached the "Ould Folks at Home."

Surgeon General Sternberg told a good story once of an experience he had in the civil war. He said that when he was going into the battle of Bull Run the Irish sergeant major of his regiment came to him with a big bag of gold coin weighing three or four pounds and said:

"Doctor, I know that I'm to be kilt entirely, an I want you to take care of this money an see that it gets to the ould folks at home."

There was no time to remonstrate or to make any other arrangement, and, dropping the bag into the surgeon's lap, the Irishman hurried away to his place at the head of the column. All through two bloody days Dr. Sternberg carried that bag of gold with his surgical instruments, and it was a burden and an embarrassment to him. He tried to get rid of it, but couldn't find any one willing to accept or even to share the responsibility, and he couldn't throw it away for the sake of the "ould folks at home."

Toward the close of the second day the surgeon was taken prisoner. He lost his surgical instruments and his medicine case, but clung to the gold, and, making a belt of his necktie and handkerchief, tied it around his waist next to his skin to prevent its confiscation by his captors. During the long, hot and weary march that followed the goldpieces chafed his flesh, and his waist became so sore and blistered as to cause him intense suffering, but he was bound that the "ould folks at home" should have the benefit of that money and by the exercise of great caution and patience managed to keep it until he was exchanged with other prisoners and got back to Washington. There he found his regiment in camp, and one of the first men to welcome him was the Irish sergeant major, who was so delighted to learn that the doctor had saved his money that he got drunk and gambled it all away the first night.—Chicago Record.

IN RIP VAN WINKLE'S LAND.

The Portuguese Colonies in Africa in a Backward State.

The Portuguese colonies in Africa are the Rip Van Winkle's land of reality. After three centuries of white dominion they remain pretty much in the condition in which Da Gama and his bold successors left them.

Here is a picture of what trade means in the favored region of Cabinda bay, where there is a single white trader who occupies a house of three rooms, with a "shop" 20 feet by 8 attached. The place is stocked with puncheons of some vile stuff called "rum" which are exchanged for palm kernels.

Knots of natives from the interior villages with loads of kernels begin to present themselves at the shop by 6 a. m., and when the trader at last makes his appearance there is a noisy crowd of kernel sellers and thirsty hangers on.

The exchange of rum for kernels is quickly effected, and by 9 o'clock in the morning the entire population may be seen lying under the shelter of the cocoanut palms either stupidly drunk or noisily quarreling.

The mingled uproar and snoring lasts till about noon, when there is a sudden return to sobriety, and the crowd clears away to the village to collect the means for another carousal.

On a "good" day the trader at Cabinda bay gets rid of about 190 gallons of rum, and he avers that the scene described is repeated every day in the year.

Next to rum and "civilization" the greatest curses of West Africa are smallpox and the sleeping sickness. From this last no case of recovery has ever been known, and so contagious is it that in the native Christian community every communicant has a separate cup from which to partake of the sacramental wine.—London Leader.

Cheap Cats.

General Sir Herbert Chermiside was formerly a consul in Asia Minor. Once, in a weak moment, he sent a couple of beautiful Angora cats as a present to a lady in Constantinople. The lady was so pleased that she asked him to send some more. Sir Herbert gave his native servant some money and told him to go and buy two or three. Then came a demand for more cats from the consul's friends, and he gave his servant more money with which to buy cats.

This went on for two or three months, and the native servant waxed exceedingly fat. One morning, however, the general, on coming out of the consulate, was surrounded by a host of infuriated veiled women, who besought Mohammed to curse him because he had stolen all their cats. It appears that the native servant had pocketed the money for himself and gone round with a sack and confiscated every cat in the place.

Fixed the Gas Company.

"I'll fix 'em," said a Capitol Hill citizen when he got his gas bill a couple of months ago. "Nine dollars and eighty cents, hey, when we've been out every night with the exception of two or three for the past month! I'll move, that's all, at the end of the month, but if I don't make that gas meter of mine work overtime between now and the day I move it'll be because I run out of matches, that's all! I'll eat up about $40 worth of gas and then let the darned gas company keep the $5 I've got on deposit!"

So from that evening on as soon as twilight fell the Capitol Hill man made a tour of the house and lit every jet from cellar to garret.

"I'll teach 'em to bunko folks!" he said to himself savagely as he started all the burners a-going.

Along toward the end of the month he and his wife picked out another house and made arrangements for moving. The Capitol Hill man was delighted when the gas bill read $29.00.

"This is one time they won't gouge me!" he shouted exultantly as he danced around with the bill in his hand.

Three days before the day set for moving his wife was taken ill, and of course the moving had to be declared off. She is only now convalescing. The Capitol Hill man paid the $29.00, and his friends are now telling him the story about the man who robbed his own trunk.—Washington Post.

Danny Lied.

Danny, who is an errand boy in a broker's office, got a job in the same office for his chum Harry. Danny set himself the task of making Harry appear to the best advantage during the probationary period of his job, and he found it necessary sometimes to use means that were only justified by the end.

Every afternoon Danny had to run with messages from one of the exchanges to the office, a distance of half a mile. When Harry came, Danny had to "break him in" to do this. The first day that he made the trip from the exchange Harry staggered into the office, gasping, with his eyes starting from his head. For a moment he couldn't speak. The broker looked at him in astonishment and said:

"You ran pretty fast, didn't you? How long did it take?"

"Four minutes and 17 seconds," Harry panted, looking at the clock.

"That's pretty good time," said the broker.

"No, sir," said Harry; "not very good. Danny says he does it every day in a minute and a quarter."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Avenge the Slight.

A rich Prussian banker who had bought his title of "von" by some means or other managed to squeeze his son into a regiment of the guards. Once admitted, he was of course treated by the other officers as one of themselves. One day the banker gave a splendid dinner, to which he invited through his son all the officers of the regiment save one, a very nice fellow, who, however, was not noble, having no aristocratic "von" prefixed to his name.

All accepted the invitation, perfectly unconscious that one of their number had been so badly treated. When, however, they took their seats at the table, the absence of their comrade was immediately noticed. Some one remarked the fact to the host, who said in a loud voice, "Ah, you see, we are going to be entre nous tonight, a really select party, you know."

"Then we must not disturb you," said the senior officer present, rising from his chair, and one after another the guardsmen solemnly filed out of the room, thus amply avenging the slight to which an officer of their regiment had been subjected.

An Example and a Warning.

"I'm afraid," said the patient wife, "that yours will be the fate of Abel."

"Why, what do you mean?" asked the astonished husband.

"Well," she replied, "Abel was killed by a club, and your club will be the death of you if you don't come home oftener."—Chicago News.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., TUESDAY, JUNE 5, 1900.

OFFICIAL NEWS PRETORIA TAKEN

Lord Roberts Sends the News to the London War Office This Morning

WAS PRACTICALLY NO DEFENSE

Beyond a Few Skirmishes to Cover the Flight of the Transvaal Leaders

BEFORE ADVANCE OF BRITISH.

London, June 5.—(Special.)—The war office officially announced this morning that a dispatch had just been received from Lord Roberts stating that British troops had entered Pretoria.

This is the first authentic news received from Pretoria since the cable announced that Lord Roberts had entered Johannesburg. The original reports that Roberts was expected in the Boer capital last Friday seem to have been premature, although the reports then received that the Boers were preparing for flight seem to have been well founded.

Instead, however, of an unopposed march from the Rand to the capital, Roberts encountered several commands of skirmishers who harassed and delayed his advance until the Transvaal leaders were well out of danger. This, however, in no way detracts from the ability shown by the British commander in his operations. His aim was to be sure and safe. He knew he had matters in his hand and could afford to take enough time to make the victory complete. To this end he sent out six columns all converging upon Pretoria, and these headed by the cavalry divisions as scouts made all danger of an ambush or trap out of the question. Meanwhile with his customary reticence "Bobs" wasted no words in cabling promises or bulletins. He waited until he had news and this morning he cabled that his forces had occupied the burgher city.

Despite all rumors to the contrary it is not believed that there will be much if any actual warfare from now on. A few irreconcilables may take to the hills and wage a guerilla warfare upon the conquerors. This was to be expected and will not affect the outcome. Even Kruger himself has no control over these men, and he cannot be held responsible for their actions.

It was reported from Lorenzo Marques late this afternoon that Kruger had embarked upon the Dutch cruiser Freisland and was now on his way to Holland.

RETURNED HOME.

Dr. J. M. Little Underwent a Very Successful Operation at the Allegheny Hospital.

Dr. J. M. Little, who had an operation performed in the Allegheny general hospital and an abscess on the brain removed, has returned home greatly improved in health and his ultimate recovery is now assured.

Two Slaves.

Last evening two Slaves from Walker's came to the city and loaded up with booze. When they got ready to go home one of them wanted to make a sleeping place out of a board pile on Sixth street. His partner succeeded in getting him up and they went home on the last car.

BIBLE READINGS.

MR. MARSHALL, OF THE MOODY SCHOOL,

Will be Here and Hold a Series of Readings at Several of the Churches.

Last night at a meeting of the Christian Endeavor society of the First Presbyterian church it was decided to have Mr. Marshall, a special bible reader from the Moody school, here and hold a series of bible readings. He will arrive June 13 and the first reading will be held one week from next Thursday in the First Presbyterian church. He will remain in the city over Sunday and arrangements as to where the other readings will be held will be made later. Sunday afternoon, June 17, a union meeting of the Young People's societies of the city will be held. Mr. Marshall will occupy the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning and evening, June 17.

CALCUTTA ROAD.

Council Proposes to Improve it to the Riverview Cemetery.

The resolution which council passed last night to improve Calcutta road provides for the grading of the east 30 feet and the laying of a 16-foot roadway from Wall street to McKinnon avenue, from McKinnon avenue to Riverview cemetery. It provides for the laying of a nine-foot roadway, setting curb and making a curb of seven feet at the summit of McKinnon's hill. The total cost of the improvement will be $10,825.99 and the city's share $2,201. It will be assessed against the property benefited. Somebody wanted to know what council was going to do with the space between Wall street and Walnut street. No person knew and Heddlestone voted no on the resolution.

A CASK

Fell Off a Dray on Market Street Yesterday and Started Down Hill.

Yesterday afternoon while a teamster was hauling ware up Market street a loaded cask fell off his dray and started down hill. It rolled across the sidewalk a short distance below city hall and lodged against a fence. The head of the cask was broken, but none of the ware was damaged.

REV. GLADDEN ILL AGAIN.

He is Now Confined to His Bed With a Severe Attack of Lumbago.

FOR ANOTHER ATTACK SOON.

Some time ago Mrs. Ellen O'Connor commenced a forcible detention action against Mrs. Dawson. The case was heard, Mrs. O'Connor secured judgment and a writ of restitution was issued.

The usual notice was served and Mrs. Dawson was given a few days over time to get out of the house, and Constable Miller even went so far as to get her another house and take a teamster out to her home in Starkey's lane to move her, but she wouldn't go. Yesterday afternoon the constable secured the services of two able bodied men and going to the home of Mrs. Dawson prepared to set her goods out in the street.

Mrs. Dawson is a judicious woman and when the party arrived at her home she had the stove red hot and plenty of hot water. The two able bodied men grabbed two chairs and carried them out on the street, but Mrs. Dawson didn't say a word and never made a threat. The two able bodied men kept their eyes on that stove, held a hurried conversation and then carried the two chairs back into the house and resigned their positions, as they didn't like the looks of that stove. Miller could do nothing without their help and he quit after Mrs. Dawson had promised to move last evening. She didn't move and this morning Miller received word that if he wanted to get her out of the house he would have to put her goods in the street. He will endeavor to secure two good men with lots of courage and get possession of that house if he can.

NARROW ESCAPE OF OCCUPANTS

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Allison, who reside at 198 Fourth street, were experimenting with a hot plate yesterday afternoon, but the experiment was not a success, and it is almost miraculous that they escaped being seriously injured.

Mr. Allison is not a plumber by trade, but he undertook to place a hot plate on top of his kitchen stove without the assistance of a plumber. Here is where he made his mistake. He succeeded in making a good job of it and the gas in the hot plate had been turned on and he and his wife were watching it with evident satisfaction when a terrific explosion took place, and hot plate, stove lids and stove arose before their astonished eyes. They lost no time in getting on the outside of the house, where they decided that they had failed to turn the gas off in the stove before they lit the gas in the hot plate.

They had no trouble in deciding that this had been a grievous oversight when they gazed on the ruins of their stove and hot plate a few minutes later in company with a large crowd of neighbors that had collected.

The damage of the explosion was not entirely confined to the stove. Bricks from the chimney flew in every direction and the neighbors were kept busy for a short time dodging bricks which alighted in their yards, and they made straight runs to get in their houses. The explosion sounded like the report of an eight-inch gun and was plainly heard in the vicinity of Market street and in a few minutes a large crowd had collected to see what it all meant and if an earthquake had taken place.

The strangest and most fortunate part of the whole affair is the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Allison escaped any injuries beyond severe shocks to their nervous systems.

15TH YEAR. NO. 302.

OFFICIAL NEWS PRETORIA TAKEN

Lord Roberts Sends the News to the London War Office This Morning

WAS PRACTICALLY NO DEFENSE

Beyond a Few Skirmishes to Cover the Flight of the Transvaal Leaders

BEFORE ADVANCE OF BRITISH.

London, June 5.—(Special.)—The war office officially announced this morning that a dispatch had just been received from Lord Roberts stating that British troops had entered Pretoria.

This is the first authentic news received from Pretoria since the cable announced that Lord Roberts had entered Johannesburg. The original reports that Roberts was expected in the Boer capital last Friday seem to have been premature, although the reports then received that the Boers were preparing for flight seem to have been well founded.

Instead, however, of an unopposed march from the Rand to the capital, Roberts encountered several commands of skirmishers who harassed and delayed his advance until the Transvaal leaders were well out of danger. This, however, in no way detracts from the ability shown by the British commander in his operations. His aim was to be sure and safe. He knew he had matters in his hand and could afford to take enough time to make the victory complete. To this end he sent out six columns all converging upon Pretoria, and these headed by the cavalry divisions as scouts made all danger of an ambush or trap out of the question. Meanwhile with his customary reticence "Bobs" wasted no words in cabling promises or bulletins. He waited until he had news and this morning he cabled that his forces had occupied the burgher city.

Despite all rumors to the contrary it is not believed that there will be much if any actual warfare from now on. A few irreconcilables may take to the hills and wage a guerilla warfare upon the conquerors. This was to be expected and will not affect the outcome. Even Kruger himself has no control over these men, and he cannot be held responsible for their actions.

It was reported from Lorenzo Marques late this afternoon that Kruger had embarked upon the Dutch cruiser Freisland and was now on his way to Holland.

RETURNED HOME.

Dr. J. M. Little Underwent a Very Successful Operation at the Allegheny Hospital.

Dr. J. M. Little, who had an operation performed in the Allegheny general hospital and an abscess on the brain removed, has returned home greatly improved in health and his ultimate recovery is now assured.

He will remain in the city over Sunday and arrangements as to where the other readings will be held will be made later. Mr. Marshall will occupy the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning and evening, June 17.

It provides for the laying of a nine-foot roadway, setting curb and making a curb of seven feet at the summit of McKinnon's hill. The total cost of the improvement will be $10,825.99 and the city's share $2,201. It will be assessed against the property benefited. Somebody wanted to know what council was going to do with the space between Wall street and Walnut street. No person knew and Heddleston voted no on the resolution.

ANOTHER CASE OF HYDROPHOBIA

Tramp Dog Visits the Farm of
Frank Glenn at West Point.

BIT HORSE, DOG AND MAN

And Was Promptly Shot—Bitten
Dog Shows Signs of Rabies
and Glenn

GOES TO PASTEUR HOSPITAL.

Some weeks since there appeared on the farm of Frank Glenn, near West Point, some seven miles distant from East Liverpool, a tramp canine, which attacked and bit a farm dog, a horse, and the young proprietor of the farm, Frank Glenn, a bright and intelligent young man, some twenty-two years of age, a nephew of Dr. Williams, this city.

The dog tramp ended his days right there, shot to death by one of the men on the farm, and no further attention was given the matter, as there was no thought of the wanderer being a mad dog. On Saturday last Glenn's dog gave unmistakable evidence of madness, and the young farmer captured him and brought him to his uncle in this city. The animal was confined in a box in a stable, and on Sunday last it was definitely settled that hydrophobia was the trouble, as the dog had spasm after spasm, the symptoms answering the dread disease exactly.

Frank Glenn left for New York city last night for the purpose of taking treatment at the Pasteur hospital. He will remain there for the next few weeks, and it is earnestly hoped that the treatment may prove efficacious.

Dr. Williams is intensely interested in the case, as is but natural, and he is paying close attention to the dog that is now imprisoned in our city.

The bitten horse has as yet given no evidence of rabies, but it is being closely watched and will be killed if necessary.

TILL THE YEAR 1840.

A Few of the Soldiers of the Civil War
May Last, Says Commissioner Evans.

Veterans of the Civil War are dying off at the rate of about 3 1-3 per cent per annum. Commissioner of Pensions Evans estimates that there are about 925,000 survivors of the Civil War. Of this number there were on the pension rolls last year 749,467. During the year 24,787 pensioned veterans died. This number is slightly more than 3 1-3 per cent. Assuming that the death rate among those not pensioned is the same as the pensioners the total number of veterans who died during the year would be about 30,755.

Mr. Evans estimates that the average age of the veterans who still survive is about 59 years. The last survivor of the war of 1812 died last summer, 75 years after the close of the war. At the same rate there will probably be a few survivors of the Civil War still living in 1940.

Census of Old Soldiers in Ohio.
Columbus, June 5.—The first report of the census of old soldiers and sailors residing in Ohio, which, by a new law, is taken by the assessors, has reached the office of the adjutant general. It comes from Carroll county, and shows that there are in that county 351 such old soldiers and sailors. The names are arranged alphabetically, and the data given of each man are such as name, rank, company, regiment, battery or ship, and name of the war engaged in. The law, as it stands, makes no arrangement for the publication of these names, but that will be done ultimately. As it stands the lists will afford state statistics that could not be found anywhere else.

NEW RULES

Adopted by the State Board of Health
Relating to Transportation of Dead.

Columbus, June 5.—The state board of health is sending out circulars giving the new rules of the department governing the transportation of dead bodies. The rules are the most stringent yet promulgated, and were adopted to lessen as much as possible the spread of contagion.

Copies of the rules will be sent to the boards of health, railway and express companies, undertakers and health officers.

In cases where death is caused by bubonic plague, smallpox, cholera, yellow fever or typhus fever the shipment of the corpse is forbidden. The remains of those dying of diphtheria and scarlet fever may be transported in a hermetically sealed casket after having been thoroughly disinfected. The disinfecting process is also required in many other diseases less virulent than those cited.

Persons accompanying dead bodies must not wear clothing which has been exposed to contagion. The rules become effective on July 1.

SONS OF VETERANS.

Arrangements Being Made For the Annual Encampment
at Springfield.

Springfield, June 5.—(Special)—Arrangements for the coming state encampment of the Sons of Veterans in this city are progressing. The business sessions will be held in the council chamber and headquarters will be in rooms 42 and 44 Arcade. One of the important considerations to come before this meeting is a resolution providing that hereafter the state meetings of the Sons of Veterans shall be held at the same time and place with the state encampment of the G. A. R. Should this resolution pass, Bellefontaine will secure the meeting for 1901, as the G. A. R. has arranged to hold its encampment in that city.

PRONOUNCED CURED.

Alliance, June 5.—(Special.)—Jesse Barcus, the Fairmount boy who was thought to be in danger of hydrophobia from the bite of a mad dog, returned Saturday from Chicago, where he had been undergoing treatment at the Pasteur institute. He was pronounced entirely cured and looked well and hearty. Though but 15 years old he made the homeward journey alone.

THE CHICAGO TEMPLE.

PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES IN OUR CITY.

The Women of the Nation are Determined That the Debt Shall Disappear.

The temple in Chicago is again attracting much attention all over this land, and the Women's Christian Temperance union is determined, God helping the members thereof, to wipe out the indebtedness hanging over the edifice which Frances Willard loved so well. The building is worth between six and eight hundred thousand dollars, and is situated at the corner of La Salle and Monroe streets. Marshall Field, a wealthy resident of Chicago, came to the rescue with an offer of a contribution of one hundred thousand dollars, provided that the women of the organization would secure sufficient money to wipe out the remaining indebtedness by January 1, 1900. The women made heroic efforts, but failed. Mr. Field then extended the limit of his offer to January 1, 1901, and the members of part of the organization are doing heroic battle to raise the required sum, now less than eighty thousand dollars.

Mrs. Matilda B. Carse, president of the board of trustees of the temple, was in East Liverpool yesterday afternoon, and, accompanied by Mrs. Aten, of Wellsville, and Mrs. Emma Palmer, this city, visited a number of leading and wealthy citizens yesterday and solicited subscriptions in the name of God and our common humanity, as the understanding is that if the temple is cleared of debt it will become a wonderful power against the rum traffic and the license curse of the nation, as it will command in rentals over one hundred thousand dollars annually, paying all running expenses and leaving a snug sum in the treasury for the purpose of prosecuting the temperance cause.

The ladies received a number of contributions in the sum of one hundred dollars, and have the promise of others to give at least the same sum, while one well known and popular citizen may give from five hundred to one thousand dollars, in the name of his mother, a noble Christian and temperance worker in her time in this city.

Mrs. Carse was in our city but about three hours, having an urgent appointment in the city of Philadelphia and being compelled to leave on the 6:34 train last evening. She expressed herself as much pleased with our city and its citizens, and promises to call again in the not distant future. She is a woman of fine and commanding presence, a fluent talker and conversationalist, interested heart and soul and body and mind in the wiping out of the debt now standing against the temple, believing that the work will be blessed by the Master and that donors to the fund will receive blessings and rewards, even upon this earth.

NO ACTION.

Finance Committee Didn't Act on

The finance committee yesterday did not act on the Rural Lane improvement from Jackson street to West Market street. The reason is that a petition is being circulated to have the alley paved through to Franklin street and it is the wish that the improvement be made all at one time.

Potts on Campbell.

Lisbon Patriot.
Jim Campbell, once governor of Ohio, says: "I want all reference to the Chicago platform left out." Jimmy is decidedly a back number. He worked and voted for McKinley in 1896 and he will do the same this year. There is more likelihood of Jimmy being caught up in a whirlwind and carried to heaven than the Ohio Democracy will trample upon the Chicago platform. Jim Campbell is an impecunious cuss and he is just waiting for a job from some millionaire syndicate. There is no proper place for him in the ranks of Democracy.

Who would think there was insanity behind a drop of water? But there is. It was a favorite torture in the old days to fasten the victim where water should slowly drip on his forehead. In a little while he was a howling maniac.

Women do not, as a rule, realize how the steady drains which sometimes afflict them must at last react on the mind. Sometimes, it is only fretfulness, irritability or peevishness. At other times the condition passes beyond unreasonableness to irrationality.

With the relief of the body, from disease, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives also a cheerful mind and contented spirit. When the drains and pains are stopped the mind soars up like a balloon from which dead weight has been cast out. Mothers who never knew a happy moment when the birth hour confronted them, and younger women doomed each month to a period of mental depression as well as physical suffering, have found a perfect cure by the use of "Favorite Prescription." It contains no alcohol, neither opium cocaine or other form of narcotic.

"I suffered with female weakness about eight years—tried several doctors, but derived no benefit until I began using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. John Green, of Danville, Boyle Co., Ky. "This medicine was recommended to me by other patients. I have taken six bottles and I feel like another person."

"I took your medicine six months and feel now like a new person," writes Miss Annie Stephens, of Belleville, Wood Co., W. Va. "Have no headache, no backache, no pain anywhere. I took seven bottles of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and seven bottles of his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I think there is no medicine like Doctor Pierce's. I can't speak highly enough of your medicine for it has done me so much good. I don't feel tired as I used to, nor sick. I feel well and think there is no medicine equal to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are graduated to the sensitive system of women.

ANOTHER CASE OF HYDROPHOBIA

Tramp Dog Visits the Farm of
Frank Glenn at West Point.

BIT HORSE, DOC AND MAN

And Was Promptly Shot—Bitten
Dog Shows Signs of Rabies
and Glenn

GOES TO PASTEUR HOSPITAL.

Some weeks since there appeared on the farm of Frank Glenn, near West Point, some seven miles distant from East Liverpool, a tramp canine, which attacked and bit a farm dog, a horse, and the young proprietor of the farm, Frank Glenn, a bright and intelligent young man, some twenty-two years of age, a nephew of Dr. Williams, this city.

The dog tramp ended his days right there, shot to death by one of the men on the farm, and no further attention was given the matter, as there was no thought of the wanderer being a mad dog. On Saturday last Glenn's dog gave unmistakable evidence of madness, and the young farmer captured him and brought him to his uncle in this city. The animal was confined in a box in a stable, and on Sunday last it was definitely settled that hydrophobia was the trouble, as the dog had spasm after spasm, the symptoms answering the dread disease exactly.

Frank Glenn left for New York city last night for the purpose of taking treatment at the Pasteur hospital. He will remain there for the next few weeks, and it is earnestly hoped that the treatment may prove efficacious.

Dr. Williams is intensely interested in the case, as is but natural, and he is paying close attention to the dog that is now imprisoned in our city.

The bitten horse has as yet given no evidence of rabies, but it is being closely watched and will be killed if necessary.

TILL THE YEAR 1840.

A Few of the Soldiers of the Civil War
May Last, Says Commissioner Evans.

Veterans of the Civil War are dying off at the rate of about 3 1-3 per cent per annum. Commissioner of Pensions Evans estimates that there are about 925,000 survivors of the Civil War. Of this number there were on the pension rolls last year 749,467. During the year 24,787 pensioned veterans died. This number is slightly more than 3 1-3 per cent. Assuming that the death rate among those not pensioned is the same as the pensioners the total number of veterans who died during the year would be about 30,755.

Mr. Evans estimates that the average age of the veterans who still survive is about 59 years. The last survivor of the war of 1812 died last summer, 75 years after the close of the war. At the same rate there will probably be a few survivors of the Civil War still living in 1940.

Census of Old Soldiers in Ohio.

Columbus, June 5.—The first report of the census of old soldiers and sailors residing in Ohio, which, by a new law, is taken by the assessors, has reached the office of the adjutant general. It comes from Carroll county, and shows that there are in that county 351 such old soldiers and sailors. The names are arranged alphabetically, and the data given of each man are such as name, rank, company, regiment, battery or ship, and name of the war engaged in. The law, as it stands, makes no arrangement for the publication of these names, but that will be done ultimately. As it stands the lists will afford state statistics that could not be found anywhere else.

NEW RULES

Adopted by the State Board of Health
Relating to Transportation of Dead.

Columbus, June 5.—The state board of health is sending out circulars giving the new rules of the department governing the transportation of dead bodies. The rules are the most stringent yet promulgated, and were adopted to lessen as much as possible the spread of contagion.

Copies of the rules will be sent to the boards of health, railway and express companies, undertakers and health officers.

In cases where death is caused by bubonic plague, smallpox, cholera, yellow fever or typhus fever the shipment of the corpse is forbidden. The remains of those dying of diphtheria and scarlet fever may be transported in a hermetically sealed casket after having been thoroughly disinfected. The disinfecting process is also required in many other diseases less virulent than those cited.

Persons accompanying dead bodies must not wear clothing which has been exposed to contagion. The rules become effective on July 1.

SONS OF VETERANS.

Arrangements Being Made For the Annual Encampment
at Springfield.

Springfield, June 5.—(Special)—Arrangements for the coming state encampment of the Sons of Veterans in this city are progressing. The business sessions will be held in the council chamber and headquarters will be in rooms 42 and 44 Arcade. One of the important considerations to come before this meeting is a resolution providing that hereafter the state meetings of the Sons of Veterans shall be held at the same time and place with the state encampment of the G. A. R. Should this resolution pass, Bellefontaine will secure the meeting for 1901, as the G. A. R. has arranged to hold its encampment in that city.

PRONOUNCED CURED.

Jesse Barcus, of the Fairmount Home,
Discharged from the Pasteur
Institute.

Alliance, June 5.—(Special.)—Jesse Barcus, the Fairmount boy who was thought to be in danger of hydrophobia from the bite of a mad dog, returned Saturday from Chicago, where he had been undergoing treatment at the Pasteur institute. He was pronounced entirely cured and looked well and hearty. Though but 15 years old he made the homeward journey alone.

CRIPPS' ULTIMATUM.

Finance Committee Meetings Must be Held in Executive Session Hereafter.

Yesterday afternoon while the finance committee was in session Cripps kept casting eager glances around him and finally announced: "The finance committee will be private hereafter. The members meet to chew the rag and all the business transacted comes up later in council meetings."

Mine Inspector For This District.

THE CHICAGO TEMPLE.

PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF
TRUSTEES IN OUR CITY.

The Women of the Nation are Determined That the Debt Shall Disappear.

The temple in Chicago is again attracting much attention all over this land, and the Women's Christian Temperance union is determined, God helping the members thereof, to wipe out the indebtedness hanging over the edifice which Frances Willard loved so well. The building is worth between six and eight hundred thousand dollars, and is situated at the corner of La Salle and Monroe streets. Marshall Field, a wealthy resident of Chicago, came to the rescue with an offer of a contribution of one hundred thousand dollars, provided that the women of the organization would secure sufficient money to wipe out the remaining indebtedness by January 1, 1900. The women made heroic efforts, but failed. Mr. Field then extended the limit of his offer to January 1, 1901, and the members of part of the organization are doing heroic battle to raise the required sum, now less than eighty thousand dollars.

Mrs. Matilda B. Carse, president of the board of trustees of the temple, was in East Liverpool yesterday afternoon, and accompanied by Mrs. Aten, of Wellsville, and Mrs. Emma Palmer, this city, visited a number of leading and wealthy citizens yesterday and solicited subscriptions in the name of God and our common humanity, as the understanding is that if the temple is cleared of debt it will become a wonderful power against the rum traffic and the license curse of the nation, as it will command in rentals over one hundred thousand dollars annually, paying all running expenses and leaving a snug sum in the treasury for the purpose of prosecuting the temperance cause.

The ladies received a number of contributions in the sum of one hundred dollars, and have the promise of others to give at least the same sum, while one well known and popular citizen may give from five hundred to one thousand dollars, in the name of his mother, a noble Christian and temperance worker in her time in this city.

Mrs. Carse was in our city but about three hours, having an urgent appointment in the city of Philadelphia and being compelled to leave on the 6:34 train last evening. She expressed herself as much pleased with our city and its citizens, and promises to call again in the not distant future. She is a woman of fine and commanding presence, a fluent talker and conversationalist, interested heart and soul and body and mind in the wiping out of the debt now standing against the temple, believing that the work will be blessed by the Master and that donors to the fund will receive blessings and rewards, even upon this earth.

NO ACTION.

Finance Committee Didn't Act on Rural Lane Improvement.

The finance committee yesterday did not act on the Rural Lane improvement from Jackson street to West Market street. The reason is that a petition is being circulated to have the alley paved through to Franklin street and it is the wish that the improvement be made all at one time.

Potts on Campbell.

Jim Campbell, once governor of Ohio, says: "I want all reference to the Chicago platform left out." Jimmy is decidedly a back number. He worked and voted for McKinley in 1896 and he will do the same this year. There is more likelihood of Jimmy being caught up in a whirlwind and carried to heaven than the Ohio Democracy will trample upon the Chicago platform. Jim Campbell is an impetuous cuss and he is just waiting for a job from some millionaire syndicate. There is no proper place for him in the ranks of Democracy.

PLEASANT STREET.

Council Last Night Passed the Resolution to Improve the Street.

Finance committee spent an hour figuring on the Pleasant street improvement yesterday and finally decided that the property was $400 shy of standing the cost of the improvement. It was decided, however, to improve the street and council passed the resolution last night. The city's share of the improvement is $368.80.

Who would think there was insanity behind a drop of water? But there is. It was a favorite torture in the old days to fasten the victim where water should slowly drip on his forehead. In a little while he was a howling maniac.

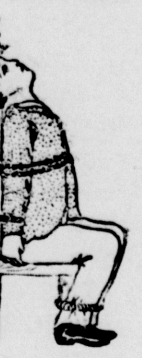

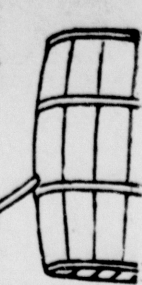

Women do not, as a rule, realize how the steady drains which sometimes afflict them must at last react on the mind. Sometimes, it is only fretfulness, irritability or peevishness. At other times the condition passes beyond unreasonableness to irrationality.

With the relief of the body, from disease, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription gives also a cheerful mind and contented spirit. When the drains and pains are stopped the mind soars up like a balloon from which dead weight has been cast out. Mothers who never knew a happy moment when the birth hour confronted them, and younger women doomed each month to a period of mental depression as well as physical suffering, have found a perfect cure by the use of "Favorite Prescription." It contains no alcohol, neither opium cocaine or other form of narcotic.

"I suffered with female weakness about eight years—tried several doctors but derived no benefit until I began using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. John Green, of Danville, Boyle Co., Ky. "This medicine was recommended to me by other patients. I have taken six bottles and I feel like another person."

"I took your medicine six months and feel now like a new person," writes Miss Annie Stephens, of Belleville, Wood Co., W. Va. "Have no headache, no backache, no pain anywhere. I took seven bottles of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and seven bottles of his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I think there is no medicine like Doctor Pierce's. I can't speak highly enough of your medicine for it has done me so much good. I don't feel tired as I used to, nor sick. I feel well and think there is no medicine equal to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are graduated to the sensitive system of women.

Officer Averted Trouble.

Officer Hamilton was called yesterday to a house out on Pennsylvania avenue to prevent an irate lover from doing bodily injury to a young man living there. The trouble was over a ring having little intrinsic value. The ring had been given by a young man employed in one of the East End potteries to a girl who was working at the home of young man No. 2, who wore it. The first young man saw it there and recognized it and then all kinds of trouble seemed likely to occur. Officer Hamilton arrived on the scene, the ring was restored to the young lady and it may be the trouble is all over.

The Ceramic Art in Russia.

In a description of the inaugurating ceremony of the first ceramic furnace near St. Petersburg—viz: at Preobraschensky—a correspondent says that although it is well known one must be acquainted with the customs and peculiarities of a people before one can establish in their midst an industry, even if very much wanted, that will yield results commensurate with the expectations that may be legitimately based upon the local needs of the article and the local facilities for producing it, such knowledge of the people and their ways is particularly requisite in dealing with Russia. This new ceramic factory is modeled on the best factories of England and Germany, but in Germany alone has the machinery been got for its use. The opening ceremony, which was attended by the religious dignitaries of the neighborhood, was a grand success, although there was a certain unexpected item of amusement in so far as when they started the brick making machine, omitting to bring into operation the cutting apparatus, the machine delivered its produce in metric rather than in numerical measure. However, the intervention of the manager, in his silk hat and white gloves brought about the normal action of the machine, and the day otherwise passed off successfully, and constituted another proof that Russia, with other civilized nations, is seeking successfully to be independent of the old recognized centers of industries for its supplies.

A DAY IN WALL STREET.

Some Speculation in Sugar—Whitsuntide Holidays in London Prevented Index of Foreign Market.

NEW YORK, June 5.—There was some speculation in sugar Monday based on the dividend prospects. It was expected that the quarterly dividend would be declared Monday, but it was announced during the trading that action would be deferred until today. Intimations were given out, however, that the executive committee had already determined upon a 1½ per cent dividend for the quarter, maintaining the same rate as the last dividend. The price was run up to 119¼ by this rumor, but later fell back below Saturday's price, closing a shade off on the day. The Whitsuntide holidays in London and on the continent left the market without any index of foreign conditions. Some sentimental depression was caused, however, by the delay in the occupation of Pretoria and by suggestions of money market difficulties in Berlin. The bears professed some uneasiness also over possible complications in the far east.

The closing of the Illinois Steel company's mills in South Chicago made the steel stocks especially weak early in the day, but the tone of the group became steadier in the late weakness of the market. A rise of 3 points in New Jersey Central caused a temporary hardening of the coalers, but it did not hold. The heavy loan expansion by the banks disclosed by Saturday bank statement, bringing the loan item to the largest figure in the history of the clearing house, was unexplained by news or any special transaction. In this connection discussion was caused by the dispatch from Berlin to the Associated Press, reporting a project by German financiers to introduce the imperial 3 per cent bonds upon the American market, owing to the great abundance of capital in the United States. The treasury department's estimate of the amount of money in circulation on June 1 shows an increase for the United States of $14,162,408 for the month, in spite of the gold exports of over $10,000,000 and the taking up of the treasury surplus of nearly $5,000,000.

The prospect of an early resumption of gold receipts from the Transvaal, the expectation that shipments will soon be received from the Klondike and the high rate of production reported by American mines arouses the discussion as to the future effect on prices of this large supply of money metal. The small brokerage failure announced during the day was without effect on the market.

The bond market was dull and irregular. Total sales par value $1,180,000. U. S. old 4s coupon declined ¼ and registered and 5s ½ per cent. The 2s advanced ½ per cent.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, June 5.—Light country acceptances to Chicago bids and a good shipping demand resulted in a strong corn market Monday. July closing ½¢ @ ¾¢ improved. Wheat was helped by corn and some damage claims from the northwest, July closing ¼¢ @ ½¢ higher. July oats closed ¼¢ better and provisions strong, 10¢ @ 22½¢.

Ask For Hamilton's Removal.

HARRISBURG, June 5.—A delegation of dairymen called on Governor Stone and asked for the removal of Secretary of Agriculture Hamilton. They also asked that Hon. James Sexton be appointed dairy and food commissioner. Governor Stone assured them that the law against oleomargarine would be enforced.

The Ceramic Art In Russia.

In a description of the inaugurating ceremony of the first ceramic furnace near St. Petersburg—viz: at Preobraschensky—a correspondent says that although it is well known one must be acquainted with the customs and peculiarities of a people before one can establish in their midst an industry, even if very much wanted, that will yield results commensurate with the expectations that may be legitimately based upon the local needs of the article and the local facilities for producing it, such knowledge of the people and their ways is particularly requisite in dealing with Russia. This new ceramic factory is modeled on the best factories of England and Germany, but in Germany alone has the machinery been got for its use. The opening ceremony, which was attended by the religious dignitaries of the neighborhood, was a grand success, although there was a certain unexpected item of amusement in so far as when they started the brick making machine, omitting to bring into operation the cutting apparatus, the machine delivered its produce in metric rather than in numerical measure. However, the intervention of the manager, in his silk hat and white gloves brought about the normal action of the machine, and the day otherwise passed off successfully, and constituted another proof that Russia, with other civilized nations, is seeking successfully to be independent of the old recognized centers of industries for its supplies.

A DAY IN WALL STREET.

Some Speculation In Sugar—Whitsuntide Holidays In London Prevented Index of Foreign Market.

NEW YORK, June 5.—There was some speculation in sugar Monday based on the dividend prospects. It was expected that the quarterly dividend would be declared Monday, but it was announced during the trading that action would be deferred until today. Intimations were given out, however, that the executive committee had already determined upon a 1½ per cent dividend for the quarter, maintaining the same rate as the last dividend. The price was run up to 119¼ by this rumor, but later fell back below Saturday's price, closing a shade off on the day. The Whitsuntide holidays in London and on the continent left the market without any index of foreign conditions. Some sentimental depression was caused, however, by the delay in the occupation of Pretoria and by suggestions of money market difficulties in Berlin. The bears professed some uneasiness also over possible complications in the far east.

The closing of the Illinois Steel company's mills in South Chicago made the steel stocks especially weak early in the day, but the tone of the group became steadier in the late weakness of the market. A rise of 3 points in New Jersey Central caused a temporary hardening of the coalers, but it did not hold. The heavy loan expansion by the banks disclosed by Saturday bank statement, bringing the loan item to the largest figure in the history of the clearing house, was unexplained by news or any special transaction. In this connection discussion was caused by the dispatch from Berlin to the Associated Press, reporting a project by German financiers to introduce the imperial 3 per cent bonds upon the American market, owing to the great abundance of capital in the United States. The treasury department's estimate of the amount of money in circulation on June 1 shows an increase for the United States of $14,162,408 for the month, in spite of the gold exports of over $10,000,000 and the taking up of the treasury surplus of nearly $5,000,000.

The prospect of an early resumption of gold receipts from the Transvaal, the expectation that shipments will soon be received from the Klondike and the high rate of production reported by American mines arouses the discussion as to the future effect on prices of this large supply of money metal. The small brokerage failure announced during the day was without effect on the market.

The bond market was dull and irregular. Total sales par value $1,180,000. U. S. old 4s coupon declined 1¼ and dc registered and 5s ½ per cent. The 2s advanced ½ per cent.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, June 5.—Light country acceptances to Chicago bids and a good shipping demand resulted in a strong corn market Monday, July closing ½ @ ½c improved. Wheat was helped by corn and some damage claims from the northwest, July closing ½ @ ½c higher. July oats closed ¼c better and provisions strong, 10 @ 22½c.

Ask For Hamilton's Removal.

HARRISBURG, June 5.—A delegation of dairymen called on Governor Stone and asked for the removal of Secretary of Agriculture Hamilton. They also asked that Hon. James Sexton be appointed dairy and food commissioner. Governor Stone assured them that the law against oleomargarine would be enforced.

ANNUAL SESSION HELD LAST NIGHT

The Riverview Cemetery Association Held Their 18th Annual Meeting.

THE REPORTS WERE READ

That of Secretary J. M. Kelly Showed That a Total of 1556 Interments Were Made.

TRUSTEES ELECTED OFFICERS.

The Riverview Cemetery association held their 18th annual meeting at city hall last evening.

The reports of President David Boyce, Secretary J. M. Kelly, Treasurer N. G. Macrum and Superintendent Whitaker were read and ordered filed. The report of Secretary J. M. Kelly showed that 65 lots had been sold during the year and 138 interments made from June, 1899, to June, 1900. The total number of interments from July 5, 1883, to the present time has been 1,556. The recent purchase of 12 and 60-100 acres gives the cemetery association a total of 73 and 80-100 acres.

The vacancies in the membership caused by the removal of Homer Laughlin and H. A. Weeks from the city were filled by the election of George Burford and Frank E. Oyster. The following trustees were then selected to serve for a period of three years: David Boyce, J. H. Simms, N. G. Macrum, J. C. Thompson and J. D. West. There are 15 directors, but all are elected to serve for a period of three years and this leaves five to be elected every year.

The association then adjourned and the trustees organized by electing David Boyce president, J. M. Kelly secretary, N. G. Macrum treasurer and Mr. Whitaker superintendent. The executive committee is as follows: David Boyce, Robert Hall, John N. Taylor, John C. Thompson and J. M. Kelly.

A special meeting of the executive committee was held this morning and it was decided to furnish each lot owner with a copy of the rules and a ticket for Sunday admission. Special tickets will be issued for visitors. This action was made necessary on account of the growing evil of Sunday loafing at the cemetery.

ALLIANCE PAPER

Praises the Appearance of the Little Visitors from the Fairmount Children's Home.

Alliance Star.

Superintendent and Mrs. Southworth brought to St. Paul's Lutheran church for the Sunday morning services a delegation of nearly 40 children from the Fairmount home. The party came in a carriage and a large "carryall," the latter drawn by four horses.

The children looked exceedingly bright and attractive in their neat attire and seemed cheerful and happy. They entertained the congregation with some excellent singing, which had the charm that characterizes juvenile voices. The occasion was a most pleasant one for old and young.

SLACK IN TRENTON.

Sanitary Ware Workers are Getting in Only a Portion of Time There.

True American.

The sanitary pottery business, which has been very quiet all summer, is now said to be growing still slacker, and some potteries are only working quarter time.

The Keystone is doing better than many. The men there, it is understood, are working about three-quarters time.

The executive committee, N. B. of O. P. has warned kilnmen, sagger-makers and sanitary pressers away from the Ironsides pottery at Bordentown, where the strike of the kilnmen is still on.

Tall Figures of a Tall Man.

Alliance Star.

Rev. Dr. Earl D. Holtz, in a Memorial Day address at East Liverpool, said:

"There were more than two million men engaged on the Union side in the civil war. This number is so large that if they were to march by a given point it would take 118 days, marching day and night, for them to pass."

In a column of soldiers marching in files of four, the usual order, the rule of calculation is 5000 men to the mile. This allows four feet between files. General Sherman states this in his "Memories" and his authority will not be questioned. Two million men in column would extend a distance of 400 miles. When on the road two and one-half miles an hour is a very easy marching gait. At that speed the entire column would pass a given point in 160 hours, or, "marching day and night" 6 days and 16 hours. Our genial friend, Dr. Holtz, is pretty tall, himself, but his figures in this case are seventeen times too high.

And They Were Married.

Lisbon, June 5.—(Special.)—About a month ago Miss Melinda Grice, of Salem, had William Dixon, of Alliance, arrested on a serious charge. The young man was lodged in jail here and yesterday Miss Grice came here and secured a marriage license. The sheriff brought Dixon to the probate judge's office and the pair were married by Squire Riddle.

Card of Thanks.

I wish to sincerely thank all my friends, the rector and choir of St. Stephen's church and especially the Sons of St. George, for their kindness to my late husband and myself.

A WOMAN'S BACK.

The Aches and Pains Will Disappear If the Advice of This East Liverpool Citizen Is Followed.

A woman's back has many aches and pains.

Most times 'tis the kidneys' fault.

Backache is really kidney ache;

That's why Doan's kidney pills cure it.

Many East Liverpool women know this.

Read what one has to say about it;

Mrs. Carlina White, of 225 Railroad street, East End, says: "I used Doan's kidney pills, and found great relief from the treatment, although I am 70 years of age, and had about given up all hope of ever being helped. I took medicines. My back ached just the same; grew stiff and lame when sitting long or when lying in bed, and sharp twinges of pain and other symptoms convinced me my kidneys were out of order. Always on the lookout for anything that might bring relief, when I heard Doan's kidney pills so highly spoken of I got a box at the W. & W. pharmacy. After using them for a short time I could plainly notice the good effect they were causing. I continued some time longer and gradually but surely improved. I found Doan's kidney pills a splendid remedy, and advise others to try them, feeling confident if they do so they will have no cause to regret it.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents per box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute.

The Riverview Cemetery association held their 18th annual meeting at city hall last evening.

The reports of President David Boyce, Secretary J. M. Kelly, Treasurer N. G. Macrum and Superintendent Whitaker were read and ordered filed. The report of Secretary J. M. Kelly showed that 65 lots had been sold during the year and 138 interments made from June, 1899, to June, 1900. The total number of interments from July 5, 1883, to the present time has been 1,556. The recent purchase of 12 and 60-100 acres gives the cemetery association a total of 73 and 80-100 acres.

The vacancies in the membership caused by the removal of Homer Laughlin and H. A. Weeks from the city were filled by the election of George Burford and Frank E. Oyster. The following trustees were then selected to serve for a period of three years: David Boyce, J. H. Simms, N. G. Macrum, J. C. Thompson and J. D. West. There are 15 directors, but all are elected to serve for a period of three years and this leaves five to be elected every year.

The association then adjourned and the trustees organized by electing David Boyce president, J. M. Kelly secretary, N. G. Macrum treasurer and Mr. Whitaker superintendent. The executive committee is as follows: David Boyce, Robert Hall, John N. Taylor, John C. Thompson and J. M. Kelly.

A special meeting of the executive committee was held this morning and it was decided to furnish each lot owner with a copy of the rules and a ticket for Sunday admission. Special tickets will be issued for visitors. This action was made necessary on account of the growing evil of Sunday loafing at the cemetery.

ALLIANCE PAPER

Praises the Appearance of the Little Visitors from the Fairmount Children's Home.

Alliance Star.

Superintendent and Mrs. Southworth brought to St. Paul's Lutheran church for the Sunday morning services a delegation of nearly 40 children from the Fairmount home. The party came in a carriage and a large "carryall," the latter drawn by four horses.

The children looked exceedingly bright and attractive in their neat attire and seemed cheerful and happy. They entertained the congregation with some excellent singing, which had the charm that characterizes juvenile voices. The occasion was a most pleasant one for old and young.

SLACK IN TRENTON.

Sanitary Ware Workers are Getting in Only a Portion of Time There.

True American.

The sanitary pottery business, which has been very quiet all summer, is now said to be growing still slacker, and some potteries are only working quarter time.

The Keystone is doing better than many. The men there, it is understood, are working about three-quarters time.

The executive committee, N. B. of O. P. has warned kilnmen, sagger-makers and sanitary pressers away from the Ironsides pottery at Bordentown, where the strike of the kilnmen is still on.

Tall Figures of a Tall Man.

Alliance Star.

Rev. Dr. Earl D. Holtz, in a Memorial Day address at East Liverpool, said:

"There were more than two million men engaged on the Union side in the civil war. This number is so large that if they were to march by a given point it would take 118 days, marching day and night, for them to pass."

In a column of soldiers marching in files of four, the usual order, the rule of calculation is 5000 men to the mile. This allows four feet between files. General Sherman states this in his "Memories" and his authority will not be questioned. Two million men in column would extend a distance of 400 miles. When on the road two and one-half miles an hour is a very easy marching gait. At that speed the entire column would pass a given point in 160 hours, or, "marching day and night" 6 days and 16 hours. Our genial friend, Dr. Holtz, is pretty tall, himself, but his figures in this case are seventeen times too high.

And They Were Married.

Lisbon, June 5.—(Special.)—About a month ago Miss Melinda Grice, of Salem, had William Dixon, of Alliance, arrested on a serious charge. The young man was lodged in jail here and yesterday Miss Grice came here and secured a marriage license. The sheriff brought Dixon to the probate judge's office and the pair were married by Squire Riddle.

Card of Thanks.

I wish to sincerely thank all my friends, the rector and choir of St. Stephen's church and especially the Sons of St. George, for their kindness to my late husband and myself.

A WOMAN'S BACK.

The Aches and Pains Will Disappear If the Advice of This East Liverpool Citizen Is Followed.

A woman's back has many aches and pains.

Most times 'tis the kidneys' fault. Backache is really kidney ache; That's why Doan's kidney pills cure it.

Many East Liverpool women know this.

Read what one has to say about it; Mrs. Carlina White, of 225 Railroad street, East End, says: "I used Doan's kidney pills, and found great relief from the treatment, although I am 70 years of age, and had about given up all hope of ever being helped. I took medicines. My back ached just the same; grew stiff and lame when sitting long or when lying in bed, and sharp twinges of pain and other symptoms convinced me my kidneys were out of order. Always on the lookout for anything that might bring relief, when I heard Doan's kidney pills so highly spoken of I got a box at the W. & W. pharmacy. After using them for a short time I could plainly notice the good effect they were causing. I continued some time longer and gradually but surely improved. I found Doan's kidney pills a splendid remedy, and advise others to try them, feeling confident if they do so they will have no cause to regret it.

J. E. Webster was arrested yesterday afternoon by Officer Aufderheide. He was very drunk and hardly knew his own name. He is still in jail awaiting a hearing.

Patrick Mooney filled up with bad booze last night and went to sleep in a doorway on Sixth street. Now Patrick had no business sleeping in a doorway, and when Officer Mahony spied him he called the patrol and Mooney was given a hurry up ride to the city jail. He has not had a hearing yet.

William Crosby, who assaulted Jack Cannon Saturday night, is still in jail and no action will be taken in his case until it is ascertained just how seriously Cannon is injured.

A telegram received yesterday stated that the United States marshal for this district would be here today, and would take McCormick back to Cleveland with him.

TO BE AMICABLY ADJUSTED

The Pottery Situation is Being Simplified and Trouble May be Averted.

The situation in regard to the pottery trouble is growing lighter every day, and the likelihood of a strike is less now than at any time since the beginning of the trouble. While the manufacturers state that they are not disposed to make any concession in the matter, it is not believed that they will hold strictly to their point if the men do their part towards making an amicable settlement.

Kilnmen's union No. 9 have called a special meeting for tonight to determine what stand they will take.

President A. S. Hughes said he believed that both parties to the controversy realized the results which were sure to follow either being unwilling to make any concession and that a settlement would soon be effected.

The executive board of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters is holding a meeting this afternoon.

TWO WEDDINGS.

Marriage of Clement McQuilken and Miss Mary Andrews—Sloan-Anderson.

At 1 o'clock this afternoon a quiet but pretty home wedding occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Andrews on Seventh street, when their daughter, Miss Mary Andrews, was married to Clement McQuilken. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a few close relatives of the contracting parties by Rev. J. C. Taggart, of the First U. P. church.

Mr. McQuilken is a well known and successful business man of this city. Miss Andrews is a young lady quite popular among the members of her social circle.

Mr. and Mrs. McQuilken left this afternoon for a tour of several weeks to Detroit, Mt. Clemens and other points on the lakes.

William W. Sloan and Miss Ella May Anderson will be married tomorrow evening at 5 o'clock at the home of the bride's father on Lisbon street. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. J. C. Taggart.

Mr. Sloan is a member of the firm of Watson & Sloan. The bride is well known in East Liverpool social circles.

Mr. and Mrs. Sloan will leave tomorrow evening for a trip in the east, after which they will be at home to their friends in East Liverpool.

FIXED IT UP.

COUNCIL MADE THE FRANCHISE LEGAL.

This Time It Is a Sure Thing That a Majority of Property Owners Have Signed Petition.

Council at the special meeting last night amended section 5 of the ordinance granting the East Liverpool Street Railway company their franchise over certain streets to Pleasant Heights, as a majority of the property owners had signed a new petition.

The amendment also provides that the railway company shall dedicate to the city a right of way on Pleasant street for street purposes and not simply grant the right of way for 25 years.

The petitions read to council last night were signed by property holders representing a frontage on West Market street of 1,521 feet out of a total of 2,355.22 feet. On Sheridan avenue the petitioners represented a frontage of 1,455 feet out of a total frontage of 2,238.86.

The passage of the amendment will probably have an effect upon the injunction cases, as one of the grounds upon which it was intended to ask for a permanent injunction was that a majority of the property owners had not signed the petition.

Clay Production.

The statistics collected and published by the United States geological survey state that the value of the clays produced and used in 1898 is estimated to be $10,000,000. This is divided into—brick clays, $9,000,000, all other including that of pottery, paper manufacture, etc., $1,000,000. The fact that nearly all brick and tile makers use their own clay makes it extremely difficult to arrive at the value of this raw material. The value of the clay products, including pottery, in 1898 was $71,597,380 as compared with $62,359,991 in 1897, an increase of $9,237,389, or 14.81 per cent.

Turned the Joke to Account.

Some friends once invited the late Tiny Waterman to their shooting club at Kings Lake, near St. Louis, and the first afternoon they stationed Tiny in a ducking tank, or sink box, where they well knew ducks had never been seen. He took the joke good naturedly, and that night at dinner he pulled a shell out of his pocket and tossed it on the table with the remark that he "thought he had put all of his shells away." Most naturally one of the diners cut the shell open with his pocketknife, disclosing the contents. Tiny seemed astounded at the number of "bullets," as he called them, and asked how many were in a shell. Of course no one could enlighten him, so he said, "If you fellows who are hunters really don't know, it seems to me that it is a good betting proposition."

"Good scheme," exclaimed one of his hosts. "Let's make it a dollar each as to who guesses nearest to the actual number in the shell."

"As there is only one bet in this proposition," Tiny suggested, "let's make it $5 a corner," which was agreed to.

Each one wrote on the tablecloth his guess as to the number contained in the shell, and when the pellets were counted it was found that Tiny had guessed the exact number. He accordingly gathered in the $30, and when he had it safely bestowed he casually inquired, "What do you fellows think I was doing in that blamed tank all afternoon?"

A Very Restful Rest.

Adolf Menzel, the German artist, was at one time engaged on a mural decoration. He had rigged up a scaffolding in his studio, on which his model was requested to stand. For two long hours the poor "poseur" stood up aloft in a most fatiguing posture. Menzel in the meantime worked at his sketch, heedless of the fact that his model was growing tired.

At length the model found it necessary to speak. "Herr professor," said he, "how about a recess?"

Menzel apologized profusely for his forgetfulness. "Certainly, certainly, my dear sir," said he. "Come down and rest yourself a bit."

The model had clambered from the scaffolding to the ladder, which led down from it to the studio floor.

"Stop!" cried the artist suddenly. "That pose is fine! Don't move a muscle!"

And once more the model was forced into strained rigidity, while the enthusiastic draftsman set about sketching him.

At the end of half an hour Menzel looked up from his work. "There," said he, "that will do nicely! Get back on the scaffold. We have had our rest. Let us get back to work again."

What the model said is left to the reader's imagination.

How Mayne Reid Won His Bride.

It was through his novel, "The Sculp Hunters," that Captain Mayne Reid won a bride. He was 30 years old when he met a damsel of 13, with whom he at once fell in love. The child took no notice of him, but he gave her the story to read, as effective a manner of courting in this nineteenth century as ever was Othello's in an earlier one. Two years later the young lady was at a public meeting where Captain Reid spoke on behalf of the Polish refugees. "An electric thrill seemed to pass through me as he entered the room," she said afterward, and when the meeting was over she went up to him. "I leave for London on the next train," he said hurriedly. "Please send me your address."

"I do not know where," she replied with some embarrassment. He instantly handed out his card and was gone. A formal little note followed: "Dear Captain Reid—As you asked me to send you my address, I do so." By return of post came the answer: "Only say that you love me and I will be with you at once," and then the reply, "I think I do love you."

We know of no worse separation than to be in a hurry and find our path obstructed by some one who is very slow.—Atchison Globe.

DR. WILLIAMS DROPS DEAD

In Justice Rose's Court While Giving His Testimony In a Suit Being Heard.

While Justice J. N. Rose was hearing the case of Dr. L. O. Williams vs. Maggie McDole, a suit for professional services this afternoon Dr. Williams, who was on the stand, suddenly threw himself back in his chair and gasped for breath.

Squire Rose hastened to get some water, but seeing the doctor was in serious danger hurriedly called in Dr. Clark next door. Before Dr. Clark could arrive, however, Dr. Williams was dead. Paralysis of the heart was the cause.

Those present say that Dr. Williams was not at all excited before the seizure. He was giving his testimony in a cool and collected manner and seemed in his usual health.

He leaves a wife and several children. He was a member of the city school board, township physician and well and favorably known to most of the residents of the city.

Trapped the Trapper.

In "Sketches of Life in the Golden State," Colonel Albert S. Evans narrates the rash exploit of an over-sanguine bear hunter:

A venturesome Yankee came to Santa Barbara some years ago and soon became an adept at throwing the lasso. Hearing the Mexican cowboys talk of lassoing the grizzly bear, he decided to show them what he could do in that line if he ever got a chance.

One day he came upon a grizzly in a favorable locality. He threw the lasso with skillful aim and reined back his trembling horse to give the bear an astonished, when the reata—which is always attached to the pommel of the saddle—came up taut.

Judge of the man's astonishment when that bear quietly assumed a sitting posture, took hold of the lasso and began to draw it in hand over hand!

The hapless descendant of the pilgrim fathers stuck to the horse and saddle until he saw the slack all drawn in and the bear and the horse coming rapidly together. Then, in a panic, he descended and ran for a tree, abandoning the horse to its fate.

Two skillful men, operating from opposite sides, can master a bear and choke him between them, but with only one man, one horse and one bear, it is another story.

Sly Joking in the Pulpit.

"Before I went to college," said a minister of this city, "I did supply work on a certain charge one summer. In the Methodist church we had service morning and evening. There was a Presbyterian church in the village, and the pastor from another village supplied it, preaching there once a Sunday in the afternoon. I went to hear him one afternoon. He was a college bred man and was supposed to be away up. When he spied me in the congregation, he came down and asked me to assist in the opening exercises. When we were seated, he asked me to read the first lesson and at the same time announced that it was a certain chapter in the book of Numbers. Just before I was to read I reached up to the desk and took down the Bible and opened at the place. I glanced down over the chapter and saw that it was a mass of unpronounceable names. I knew that he was working a joke on me. He knew that I could not get away with those names. I said nothing, but when the time came I stood up and announced the chapter following and read it."

"When I sat down, he gave me a look, and he got one back. I whispered hoarsely, 'I guess not.' Those were the only words spoken on this subject."—Utica Observer.

The vigor of our spiritual life will be in exact proportion to the place held by the word in our life and thoughts. I can solemnly state this from the experience of 54 years. The Holy Spirit is the instructor and the word the medium by which God teaches.—George Muller.

He took the joke good naturedly, and that night at dinner he pulled a shell out of his pocket and tossed it on the table with the remark that he "thought he had put all of his shells away." Most naturally one of the diners cut the shell open with his pocketknife, disclosing the contents. Tiny seemed astounded at the number of "bullets," as he called them, and asked how many were in a shell. Of course no one could enlighten him, so he said, "If you fellows who are hunters really don't know, it seems to me that it is a good betting proposition."

"Good scheme," exclaimed one of his hosts. "Let's make it a dollar each as to who guesses nearest to the actual number in the shell."

"As there is only one bet in this proposition," Tiny suggested, "let's make it $5 a corner," which was agreed to.

Each one wrote on the tablecloth his guess as to the number contained in the shell, and when the pellets were counted it was found that Tiny had guessed the exact number. He accordingly gathered in the $30, and when he had it safely bestowed he casually inquired, "What do you fellows think I was doing in that blamed tank all afternoon?"

A Very Realist Rest.

Adolf Menzel, the German artist, was at one time engaged on a mural decoration. He had rigged up a scaffolding in his studio, on which his model was requested to stand. For two long hours the poor "poseur" stood up aloft in a most fatiguing posture. Menzel in the meantime worked at his sketch, heedless of the fact that his model was growing tired.

At length the model found it necessary to speak. "Herr professor," said he, "how about a recess?"

Menzel apologized profusely for his forgetfulness. "Certainly, certainly, my dear sir," said he. "Come down and rest yourself a bit."

The model had clambered from the scaffolding to the ladder, which led down from it to the studio floor.

"Stop!" cried the artist suddenly. "That pose is fine! Don't move a muscle!"

And once more the model was forced into strained rigidity, while the enthusiastic draftsman set about sketching him.

At the end of half an hour Menzel looked up from his work. "There," said he, "that will do nicely! Get back on the scaffold. We have had our rest. Let us get back to work again."

What the model said is left to the reader's imagination.

How Mayne Reid Won His Bride.

It was through his novel, "The Sculp Hunters," that Captain Mayne Reid won a bride. He was 30 years old when he met a damsel of 13, with whom he at once fell in love. The child took no notice of him, but he gave her the story to read, as effective a manner of courting in this nineteenth century as ever was Othello's in an earlier one. Two years later the young lady was at a public meeting where Captain Reid spoke on behalf of the Polish refugees. "An electric thrill seemed to pass through me as he entered the room," she said afterward, and when the meeting was over she went up to him. "I leave for London on the next train," he said hurriedly. "Please send me your address."

"I do not know where," she replied with some embarrassment. He instantly handed out his card and was gone. A formal little note followed: "Dear Captain Reid—As you asked me to send you my address, I do so." By return of post came the answer: "Only say that you love me and I will be with you at once," and then the reply, "I think I do love you."

We know of no worse separation than to be in a hurry and find our path obstructed by some one who is very slow.—Athenian Globe.

DR. WILLIAMS DROPS DEAD

In Justice Rose's Court While Giving His Testimony In a Suit Being Heard.

While Justice J. N. Rose was hearing the case of Dr. L. O. Williams vs. Maggie McDole, a suit for professional services this afternoon Dr. Williams, who was on the stand, suddenly threw himself back in his chair and gasped for breath.

Squire Rose hastened to get some water, but seeing the doctor was in serious danger hurriedly called in Dr. Clark next door. Before Dr. Clark could arrive, however, Dr. Williams was dead. Paralysis of the heart was the cause.

Those present say that Dr. Williams was not at all excited before the seizure. He was giving his testimony in a cool and collected manner and seemed in his usual health.

He leaves a wife and several children. He was a member of the city school board, township physician and well and favorably known to most of the residents of the city.

Trapped the Trapper.

In "Sketches of Life in the Golden State," Colonel Albert S. Evans narrates the rash exploit of an over-sanguine bear hunter:

A venturesome Yankee came to Santa Barbara some years ago and soon became an adept at throwing the lasso. Hearing the Mexican cowboys talk of lassoing the grizzly bear, he decided to show them what he could do in that line if he ever got a chance.

One day he came upon a grizzly in a favorable locality. He threw the lasso with skillful aim and reined back his trembling horse to give the bear an astonished, when the reata—which is always attached to the pommel of the saddle—came up taut.

Judge of the man's astonishment when that bear quietly assumed a sitting posture, took hold of the lasso and began to draw it in hand over hand!

The hapless descendant of the pilgrim fathers stuck to the horse and saddle until he saw the slack all drawn in and the bear and the horse coming rapidly together. Then, in a panic, he descended and ran for a tree, abandoning the horse to its fate.

Two skillful men, operating from opposite sides, can master a bear and choke him between them, but with only one man, one horse and one bear, it is another story.

Sly Joking in the Pulpit.

"Before I went to college," said a minister of this city, "I did supply work on a certain charge one summer. In the Methodist church we had service morning and evening. There was a Presbyterian church in the village, and the pastor from another village supplied it, preaching there once a Sunday in the afternoon. I went to hear him one afternoon. He was a college bred man and was supposed to be away up. When he spied me in the congregation, he came down and asked me to assist in the opening exercises. When we were seated, he asked me to read the first lesson and at the same time announced that it was a certain chapter in the book of Numbers. Just before I was to read I reached up to the desk and took down the Bible and opened at the place. I glanced down over the chapter and saw that it was a mass of unpronounceable names. I knew that he was working a joke on me. He knew that I could not get away with those names. I said nothing, but when the time came I stood up and announced the chapter following and read it.

"When I sat down, he gave me a look, and he got one back. I whispered hoarsely, 'I guess not.' Those were the only words spoken on this subject."—Utica Observer.

The vigor of our spiritual life will be in exact proportion to the place held by the word in our life and thoughts. I can solemnly state this from the experience of 54 years. The Holy Spirit is the instructor and the word the medium by which God teaches.—George Muller.

BOXERS GET BOLDER.

Murders and Oppression Increase Outside Pekin.

REPORT FROM MINISTER CONGER.

Serious Crisis at Palace—Ultra Conservatives Advocate No Action Against Boxers—Missionary Missing, Another Captured—Five Natives Murdered.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The following cablegram was received at the state department from United States Minister Conger, at Pekin:

"PEKIN, June 4. "Outside of Pekin, the murders and persecutions by the 'Boxers' seem to be on the increase. The Pao Ting Fu railway is temporarily abandoned. Work on the Pekin and Hankow line is stopped. All foreigners have fled. The Chinese government seems either unwilling or unable to suppress the trouble. The troops show no energy in attacking the 'boxers'."

"CONGER." Grave as these advices are, they have not induced the state department to vary the line of action it has laid down. If occasion should arise Admiral Kempf might be reinforced to almost any extent likely to be needed. The state department did not contemplate sending more troops.

The marines are employed simply in the protection of the United States legation and consulates, and for the assistance of such American citizens as may be in jeopardy.

PEKING, Sunday, June 3.—A serious crisis exists at the palace. The ultra-conservative party advocates not taking repressive measures, urging the dowager empress to allow the "Boxers" to finish the work of driving the foreigners out of the country, the moderate party, led by Prince Ching, representing the serious danger of provoking a conflict with the powers. It is impossible to confirm or deny the report, but significant indications of the feeling of the government towards foreigners are contained in the attempt to arrest Lin, Chinese manager of the Peking syndicate; Kia, chief of the Shan-Si commercial bureau, and Fan, a leading banker of Shan-Si, on the ground that they are "dangerous characters," but in reality because they are connected with new British enterprises. Fortunately all of them were absent, and they have not yet been arrested. The British minister, Sir Claude MacDonald, has addressed a note to the tsung li yamen, demanding why the arrests were ordered.

TIENTSIN, June 5.—Huang Tsun, the next station to Feng Tai, was burned and a bridge was damaged.

Traffic between Tientsin and Peking was suspended. It was reported that Pao Ting Pu was attacked. Mr. Robinson, of the North China Mission (not Mr. Stevenson, of the Church of England Mission at Yem Ching, as cabled previously), was missing and five native Christians had been murdered at Zang Ching. Mr. Norman, of the same mission, was captured at Wu Chia Ying, about two miles from Yang Ching and was in great danger.

REFORMED PRESBYTERIANS.

Synod Decided to Meet May 29, 1901 In Pittsburg—Aid R commended For Starving India.

CEDARVILLE, O., June 5.—When the Reformed Presbyterian synod met it was decided to meet next year at Pittsburg on May 29, in the Eighth Street Reformed Presbyterian church. The synod passed a resolution recommending the congregation of the church to aid the starving millions of India. A resolution was adopted declaring that the substitution of hymns for psalms in public worship is the same as the substitution of a work of prose for some other book of the Bible.

The committee on systematic beneficence reported, urging the members of the church to give one-tenth of their income to the work of the church. Dr. J. W. Sproull, of Allegheny City, chairman of the committee of the Sabbath schools and Young People's societies reported 10,449 scholars in the Sabbath schools and that the Young People's societies are doing work.

HEROIC RAILROADERS.

Express Messenger and Engineer Prevented Robbers From Looting An Express Car in Texas.

LONGVIEW, Tex., June 5.—The north-bound "cannon ball" train on the International and Great Northern was held up near Price's switch, about 60 miles south of this city.

A pile of ties was placed on the track. And as the train came to a stop three masked men climbed into the engine. They forced the engineer and fireman to uncouple the mail, baggage and express cars and pull about two miles from the remainder of the train.

The robbers made Fireman Love break a hole in the end of the express car. Love was forced in, and Messenger Rutherford fired past his head barely missing the robbers, who then undertook to kill Rutherford by shooting through the side of the car.

In the confusion Engineer Rich crawled away to his engine, pulled the throttle wide open and left the robbers behind.

AN ARMY OF 40,000.

Regulars to Be Kept In the Philippines.

THE VOLUNTEERS TO COME HOME.

Movement Expected to Commence Early In November, According to General Corbin—Regulars to Be Sent to Take Their Places.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—In order to prevent misapprehension as to the future policy of the war department respecting the military forces in the Philippines, Adjutant General Corbin said there had been no change of policy since the departure of General Otis and that none was contemplated. Under the law the entire volunteer army now serving in the Philippines will go out of existence June 30, 1901, and the problem before the war department is how to get the 31,000 men of that army home from the Philippines before the date named, at the same time relieving them with other troops of the regular establishment, so far as possible without loss of military prestige in the Philippines and without material disturbance of the present military organization.

General Corbin says it is proposed to maintain an army of 40,000 regulars in the Philippines so long as required and to do this it will be necessary to draw upon the troops now in Cuba. The army in the Philippines at present numbers about 62,000 men equally divided between regulars and volunteers. All the volunteers are to be brought home and mustered out at the place of enlistment, June 30, next year, and in order to accomplish this with certainty and with the least embarrassment the homeward movement will begin early in the coming November.

In order that there may be no immediate reduction of force under General MacArthur, it has been arranged to send regular troops to the Philippines as rapidly as possible to take the places of the departing volunteers.

10,780 REBELS

REPORTED KILLED.

But General MacArthur Thought the Figures Excessive—2,104 Reported Wounded, but Likely More.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Secretary Root made answer to the senate resolution inquiring as to the number of Philippines killed and wounded and the number of prisoners taken since the insurrection began, by giving the following:

MANILA, June 4.

Adjutant General, Washington:

"With reference to your telegram of 22d ult.: Filipinos killed, 10,780; wounded, 2,104; captured and surrendered, 10,424; number prisoners in our possession, about 2,000. No systematic record Filipino casualties these headquarters. Foregoing, compiled from large number reports, made immediately after engagements, is as close an approximation as now possible owing to wide distribution of troops. More accurate report would take weeks to prepare. Number reported killed probably in excess of accurate figures; number reported wounded probably much less, as Filipinos managed to remove most wounded from field, and comparatively few fell into our hands. Officers of high rank and dangerous, suspicious men have been retained as prisoners; most other men discharged on field as soon as disarmed. Propose to release all but very few prisoners at early date."

"MACARTHUR."

$5,000,000 APPROPRIATED.

House Agreed to Senate Amendment to Aid St. Louis Fair—Some Other Business.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The house agreed to the senate amendment to the sundry civil bill appropriating $5,000,000 for the Louisiana purchase exposition at St. Louis. The house also agreed to the senate item for the Mississippi river, with an amendment reducing the appropriation to $2,250,000 and adding a provision for the preparation of a comprehensive report on the levee system by the Mississippi river commission. With these exceptions, the items of the sundry civil bill still in dispute after the adoption of the partial conference report, were sent back to conference. The disputed items of the District of Columbia bill were agreed to, and the bill went to the president, leaving only four appropriation bills in dispute between the two houses. Mr. Tawney, of Minnesota, was making an effort to delay final adjournment unless action is had on the Grout oleomargarine bill, but he met with no success. Everything, so far as the house is concerned, indicates final adjournment on Wednesday.

CONVERGING ON PRETORIA.

Believed In London That Roberts' Army Was Moving on the Boer Capital.

LONDON, June 5.—Of official intelligence regarding what is transpiring outside Pretoria there is little or nothing Lord Roberts is silent. Nevertheless, by piecing together items from various correspondents it would seem that Lord Roberts' immediate army is all employed north of Johannesburg, except one brigade which is at Johannesburg and that six columns are converging on Pretoria.

An undated News Agency message from Pretoria, via Lourenço Marques, June 4, said:

"Pretoria is now invested by the British. No resistance will be offered. The city will be surrendered by the burgomaster as soon as a formal demand is made."

This message purports to come in cipher President Kruger commands the telegraph eastward from Pretoria, and telegraphic news from Pretoria to Lourenço Marques has ceased, but the messages of newspaper correspondents continue to pass to and fro on the railway. The latest to arrive at Lourenço Marques brings events at the Boer capital down to a late hour Friday night. At that time, according to these sources of information, the leaders had quite recovered from the panic and had determined to defend the town.

LONGVIEW, Tex., June 5.—The north-bound "cannon ball" train on the International and Great Northern was held up near Price's switch, about 60 miles south of this city.

A pile of ties was placed on the track, and as the train came to a stop three masked men climbed into the engine. They forced the engineer and fireman to uncouple the mail, baggage and express cars and pull about two miles from the remainder of the train.

The robbers made Fireman Love break a hole in the end of the express car. Love was forced in, and Messenger Rutherford fired past his head barely missing the robbers, who then undertook to kill Rutherford by shooting through the side of the car.

In the confusion Engineer Rich crawled away to his engine, pulled the throttle wide open and left the robbers behind.

NEW YORK, June 5.—Requisition papers having been signed in the case of Charles F. W. Neely, accused of having embezzled postal funds of the United States government in Cuba, preparations are being made by the federal authorities for the transfer of the prisoner to Havana.

It is expected that habeas corpus proceedings will be brought in Neely's behalf, and Assistant United States Attorney Baldwin says that under the original charge framed under sections 1 and 2 of the act of March 3, 1875, he can be tried in this district.

AN ARMY OF 40,000.

Regulars to Be Kept In the Philippines.

THE VOLUNTEERS TO COME HOME.

Movement Expected to Commence Early In November, According to General Corbin—Regulars to Be Sent to Take Their Places.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—In order to prevent misapprehension as to the future policy of the war department respecting the military forces in the Philippines, Adjutant General Corbin said there had been no change of policy since the departure of General Otis and that none was contemplated. Under the law the entire volunteer army now serving in the Philippines will go out of existence June 30, 1901, and the problem before the war department is how to get the 31,000 men of that army home from the Philippines before the date named, at the same time relieving them with other troops of the regular establishment, so far as possible without loss of military prestige in the Philippines and without material disturbance of the present military organization.

General Corbin says it is proposed to maintain an army of 40,000 regulars in the Philippines so long as required and to do this it will be necessary to draw upon the troops now in Cuba. The army in the Philippines at present numbers about 62,000 men equally divided between regulars and volunteers. All the volunteers are to be brought home and mustered out at the place of enlistment, June 30, next year, and in order to accomplish this with certainty and with the least embarrassment the homeward movement will begin early in the coming November.

In order that there may be no immediate reduction of force under General MacArthur, it has been arranged to send regular troops to the Philippines as rapidly as possible to take the places of the departing volunteers.

10,780 REBELS

REPORTED KILLED.

But General MacArthur Thought the Figures Excessive—2,104 Reported Wounded, but Likely More.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Secretary Root made answer to the senate resolution inquiring as to the number of Philippines killed and wounded and the number of prisoners taken since the insurrection began, by giving the following:

MANILA, June 4.

Adjutant General, Washington:

"With reference to your telegram of 22d ult.: Filipinos killed, 10,780; wounded, 2,104; captured and surrendered, 10,424; number prisoners in our possession, about 2,000. No systematic record Filipino casualties these headquarters. Foregoing, compiled from large number reports, made immediately after engagements, is as close an approximation as now possible owing to wide distribution of troops. More accurate report would take weeks to prepare. Number reported killed probably in excess of accurate figures; number reported wounded probably much less, as Filipinos managed to remove most wounded from field, and comparatively few fell into our hands. Officers of high rank and dangerous, suspicious men have been retained as prisoners; most other men discharged on field as soon as disarmed. Propose to release all but very few prisoners at early date.

"MACARTHUR."

$5,000,000 APPROPRIATED.

House Agreed to Senate Amendment to Aid St. Louis Fair—Some Other Business.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The house agreed to the senate amendment to the sundry civil bill appropriating $5,000,000 for the Louisiana purchase exposition at St. Louis. The house also agreed to the senate item for the Mississippi river, with an amendment reducing the appropriation to $2,250,000 and adding a provision for the preparation of a comprehensive report on the levee system by the Mississippi river commission. With these exceptions, the items of the sundry civil bill still in dispute after the adoption of the partial conference report, were sent back to conference. The disputed items of the District of Columbia bill were agreed to, and the bill went to the president, leaving only four appropriation bills in dispute between the two houses. Mr. Tawney, of Minnesota, was making an effort to delay final adjournment unless action is had on the Grout oleomargarine bill, but he met with no success. Everything, so far as the house is concerned, indicates final adjournment on Wednesday.

CONVERGING ON PRETORIA.

Believed In London That Roberts' Army Was Moving on the Boer Capital.

LONDON, June 5.—Of official intelligence regarding what is transpiring outside Pretoria there is little or nothing. Lord Roberts is silent. Nevertheless, by piecing together items from various correspondents it would seem that Lord Roberts' immediate army is all employed north of Johannesburg, except one brigade which is at Johannesburg and that six columns are converging on Pretoria.

An undated News Agency message from Pretoria, via Lourenzo Marques, June 4, said:

"Pretoria is now invested by the British. No resistance will be offered. The city will be surrendered by the burghmaster as soon as a formal demand is made."

This message purports to come in cipher. President Kruger commands the telegraph eastward from Pretoria, and telegraphic news from Pretoria to Lourenzo Marques has ceased, but the messages of newspaper correspondents continue to pass to and fro on the railway. The latest to arrive at Lourenzo Marques brings events at the Boer capital down to a late hour Friday night. At that time, according to these sources of information, the leaders had quite recovered from the panic and had determined to defend the town.

HE BEGAN ALL RIGHT

BUT THE NEW TENANT DID NOT CARRY OUT HIS PROGRAMME.

He Thought He Could Bluff the Office Elevator Boy, and There Is Where He Made an Awful Mistake—The Boy's Story of His Revenge.

[Copyright, 1900, by C. B. Lewis.]

A few weeks ago, when Mr. Rockaway, the kodak agent, moved into room 68, he took an early opportunity to say to me:

"Sammis, there are owners of skyscrapers, and there are agents and janitors of skyscrapers, but the elevator boy is the real boss."

"Yes, sir, he is," I humbly replied. "If he stands in with the tenant, that tenant is all right; if he don't stand in, then the tenant might as well hunt for another office. I want to stand in with you, Sammis."

"Yes, sir." "You are a widow's son. Here's half a dollar to cheer your mother's lonely heart. You are trying to pay off the gigantic mortgage left on the estate by

THEN SHE STARTED IN TO WRECK THINGS, your father. Here's another half to assist you. This is simply preparatory, Sammis. Quarters and halves and dollars will chink and rattle around here and pass from me to you with astonishing frequency. All you've got to do is to look out for my interests."

"Yes, sir." "Should a woman call here, Sammis—an oldish woman, with red hair and a sharp nose and a voice like a file?"

"You are out, of course. She's the woman who wants contributions for the heathen, and you don't want to be bothered."

"Exactly, Sammis! And you are a jewel!" he said as he patted me on the head. "I am always to be out when she calls. You are to discourage her from calling again. You may even hint that I have removed to Chicago or St. Louis. I see you closely scrutinizing my side whiskers, Sammis. Don't you like the color?"

"Yes, sir, but they are false."

"Ah, Sammis, another quarter for the gigantic mortgage. It's a little notion of mine to wear false whiskers for a few weeks, and nothing need be said about it. What we know we know, but we keep mum about it. You trust me; I trust you. We'll make that mortgage look sick in a month or two. Ta, ta, Sammis! I think we understand each other."

I thought so, too, and it was all right for two or three weeks. Mr. Rockaway didn't come down with any more halves, but I didn't lay that up against him. It was what he said and did that hurt my feelings. One day at the fourth floor a lawyer's boy called me a sawed off liar. I stopped the elevator to punch his head and thus was late getting up to answer a call from Mr. Rockaway. He was mad about it, and, taking me by the ear, he said:

"You trifling young monkey, but I'll have no more of this! I've a good mind to report you to the agent and have you bounced! What do you mean by such conduct?"

"I'm sorry, sir."

"That makes no difference. From this time out I shall have an eye on you, and you'll either walk chalk or get the bounce. Do you hear me?"

The iron struck home. From that hour I waited and longed for a red-headed, sharp nosed woman to appear. Luck was with me. On the afternoon of the fifth day she walked in and made straight for me and said:

"Bub, I'm looking for a man named Rockaway. I'm his wife."

"Have you got business with him?" I asked.

"I have—strict business. Is there such a man in this building?"

"There is a Mr. Rockaway here, but he's got side whiskers."

"Oh, he has! Well, I'll pull 'em off in three seconds! Take me right up."

I took her up. I am not a bad elevator boy at heart, but a boy in my position has got to maintain his dignity among the tenants. I held the elevator until I saw her enter room 68 and heard the first shock of collision, and then I had business elsewhere. What happened after that was told by the typewriter in Mr. Rockaway's office. When the redheaded woman bounced into the room, she first attacked those beautiful side whiskers, and they were wrecked in a breath. Then she started in to wreck things, and her language was English and her tones loud. She had the whole floor alarmed in two minutes, and the people who rushed in found the typewriter girl hiding under the desk and Mr. Rockaway on the floor and mixed up with broken furniture. It was lively while it lasted, and the redheaded woman had breath enough left to explain that the man on his back was her lawful husband, but had run away from her in Buffalo a year before. He had nothing to say in reply, and when the agent came up and told him that he had better look for other quarters he prepared to move. I didn't see him until the remains of his office furniture had been sent away. Then he rang for me to take him down. He had not resumed his side whiskers. There were scratches all over his face and neck, a lump on his jaw, and the wildness yet lingered in his eyes. I expected he would threaten or reproach me, but he didn't feel at all that way. On the contrary, there was sadness in his voice and gentleness in his hand as he reached out for a farewell shake and said:

"Sammis, I cannot blame you. I began right, but I did not carry out the programme. I started in to be a father to you and to help lift that gigantic mortgage, but later on I decided that bluff would be the game to work. You saw my bluff and went one better. It was you who brought her up?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you gave my side whiskers away?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, it was my own fault. Office gone, whiskers gone, typewriter gone and the redheaded woman camped on my trail. I am financially ruined, Sammis, and can't say that I have even saved my honor. However, here's my hand, and I bear you no ill will. If I die, I shall forgive you; if I live on, it will be a great moral lesson to me."

That afternoon Mr. Rasher, the agent called me into his office and said:

"Sammis, has your wounded dignity been healed?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then don't take any more redheaded women up in the elevator. Such little affairs as that in room 68 cause gossip and hurt our business."

Just at present our building is as quiet as a graveyard, and I hope it may long remain so. Something may bob up at any moment, however, but if it does it will not be the fault of SAMMIS, the Elevator Boy.

A Chicago Street Car Episode.

Passengers on an east bound Archer avenue car were thrown into a panic one night by the prospect of a holdup. At the sight of a wild eyed man jerking the bell rope and flourishing a huge revolver timid women sought shelter behind brave men.

Quiet was restored when the real cause of the disturbance was learned. Car 1811 had been about to cross the switch tracks at Ashland avenue when the conductor asked the man for his fare. He took a $5 bill and was about to make change when he saw the warning lights ahead.

"Wait a moment," he said and darted ahead with his lantern.

"Stop the car!" roared the excitable passenger, who saw the conductor and his $5 disappearing down the track. "He's got my money!"

The would be "holdup" man had reached the front door when the car flashed past the conductor, who was waiting for the rear platform. The passenger tried to jump from the car, but found it impossible because of the Archer avenue bridge structure. Then he made a mad dash for the rear door, where the conductor met him with a polite "Don't forget your change, sir."—Chicago Record.

THE SERGEANT'S GOLD.

It Never Reached the "Ould Folks at Home."

Surgeon General Sternberg told a good story once of an experience he had in the civil war. He said that when he was going into the battle of Bull Run the Irish sergeant major of his regiment came to him with a big bag of gold coin weighing three or four pounds and said:

"Doctor, I know that I'm to be kilt entirely, an I want you to take care of this money an see that it gets to the ould folks at home."

There was no time to remonstrate or to make any other arrangement, and, dropping the bag into the surgeon's lap, the Irishman hurried away to his place at the head of the column. All through two bloody days Dr. Sternberg carried that bag of gold with his surgical instruments, and it was a burden and an embarrassment to him. He tried to get rid of it, but couldn't find any one willing to accept or even to share the responsibility, and he couldn't throw it away for the sake of the "ould folks at home."

Toward the close of the second day the surgeon was taken prisoner. He lost his surgical instruments and his medicine case, but clung to the gold, and, making a belt of his necktie and handkerchief, tied it around his waist next to his skin to prevent its confiscation by his captors. During the long, hot and weary march that followed the goldpieces chafed his flesh, and his waist became so sore and blistered as to cause him intense suffering, but he was bound that the "ould folks at home" should have the benefit of that money and by the exercise of great caution and patience managed to keep it until he was exchanged with other prisoners and got back to Washington. There he found his regiment in camp, and one of the first men to welcome him was the Irish sergeant major, who was so delighted to learn that the doctor had saved his money that he got drunk and gambled it all away the first night.—Chicago Record.

IN RIP VAN WINKLE'S LAND.

The Portuguese Colonies in Africa in a Backward State.

The Portuguese colonies in Africa are the Rip Van Winkle's land of reality. After three centuries of white dominion they remain pretty much in the condition in which Da Gama and his bold successors left them.

Here is a picture of what trade means in the favored region of Cabinda bay, where there is a single white trader who occupies a house of three rooms, with a "shop" 20 feet by 8 attached. The place is stocked with puncheons of some vile stuff called "rum" which are exchanged for palm kernels.

Knots of natives from the interior villages with loads of kernels begin to present themselves at the shop by 6 a. m., and when the trader at last makes his appearance there is a noisy crowd of kernel sellers and thirsty hangers on.

The exchange of rum for kernels is quickly effected, and by 9 o'clock in the morning the entire population may be seen lying under the shelter of the cocoanut palms either stupidly drunk or noisily quarreling.

The mingled uproar and snoring lasts till about noon, when there is a sudden return to sobriety, and the crowd clears away to the village to collect the means for another carousal.

On a "good" day the trader at Cabinda bay gets rid of about 190 gallons of rum, and he avers that the scene described is repeated every day in the year.

Next to rum and "civilization" the greatest curses of West Africa are smallpox and the sleeping sickness. From this last no case of recovery has ever been known, and so contagious is it that in the native Christian community every communicant has a separate cup from which to partake of the sacramental wine.—London Leader.

Cheap Cats.

General Sir Herbert Chermiside was formerly a consul in Asia Minor. Once, in a weak moment, he sent a couple of beautiful Angora cats as a present to a lady in Constantinople. The lady was so pleased that she asked him to send some more. Sir Herbert gave his native servant some money and told him to go and buy two or three. Then came a demand for more cats from the consul's friends, and he gave his servant more money with which to buy cats.

This went on for two or three months, and the native servant waxed exceedingly fat. One morning, however, the general, on coming out of the consulate, was surrounded by a host of infuriated veiled women, who besought Mohammed to curse him because he had stolen all their cats. It appears that the native servant had pocketed the money for himself and gone round with a sack and confiscated every cat in the place.

Fixed the Gas Company.

"I'll fix 'em," said a Capitol Hill citizen when he got his gas bill a couple of months ago. "Nine dollars and eighty cents, hey, when we've been out every night with the exception of two or three for the past month! I'll move, that's all, at the end of the month, but if I don't make that gas meter of mine work overtime between now and the day I move it'll be because I run out of matches, that's all! I'll eat up about $40 worth of gas and then let the darned gas company keep the $5 I've got on deposit!"

So from that evening on as soon as twilight fell the Capitol Hill man made a tour of the house and lit every jet from cellar to garret.

"I'll teach 'em to bunko folks!" he said to himself savagely as he started all the burners a-going.

Along toward the end of the month he and his wife picked out another house and made arrangements for moving. The Capitol Hill man was delighted when the gas bill read $23.00.

"This is one time they won't gouge me!" he shouted exultantly as he danced around with the bill in his hand.

Three days before the day set for moving his wife was taken ill, and of course the moving had to be declared off. She is only now convalescing. The Capitol Hill man paid the $29.60, and his friends are now telling him the story about the man who robbed his own trunk.—Washington Post.

Danny Lied.

Danny, who is an errand boy in a broker's office, got a job in the same office for his chum Harry. Danny set himself the task of making Harry appear to the best advantage during the probationary period of his job, and he found it necessary sometimes to use means that were only justified by the end.

Every afternoon Danny had to run with messages from one of the exchanges to the office, a distance of half a mile. When Harry came, Danny had to "break him in" to do this. The first day that he made the trip from the exchange Harry staggered into the office, gasping, with his eyes starting from his head. For a moment he couldn't speak. The broker looked at him in astonishment and said:

"You ran pretty fast, didn't you? How long did it take?"

"Four minutes and 17 seconds," Harry panted, looking at the clock.

"That's pretty good time," said the broker.

"No, sir," said Harry; "not very good. Danny says he does it every day in a minute and a quarter."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Avenge the Slight.

A rich Prussian banker who had bought his title of "von" by some means or other managed to squeeze his son into a regiment of the guards. Once admitted, he was of course treated by the other officers as one of themselves. One day the banker gave a splendid dinner, to which he invited through his son all the officers of the regiment save one, a very nice fellow, who, however, was not noble, having no aristocratic "von" prefixed to his name.

All accepted the invitation, perfectly unconscious that one of their number had been so badly treated. When, however, they took their seats at the table, the absence of their comrade was immediately noticed. Some one remarked the fact to the host, who said in a loud voice, "Ah, you see, we are going to be entre nous tonight, a really select party, you know."

"Then we must not disturb you," said the senior officer present, rising from his chair, and one after another the guardsmen solemnly filed out of the room, thus amply avenging the slight to which an officer of their regiment had been subjected.

HE BEGAN ALL RIGHT

BUT THE NEW TENANT DID NOT CARRY OUT HIS PROGRAMME.

He Thought He Could Bluff the Office Elevator Boy, and There Is Where He Made an Awful Mistake—The Boy's Story of His Revenge.

[Copyright, 1900, by C. B. Lewis.]

A few weeks ago, when Mr. Rockaway, the kodak agent, moved into room 68, he took an early opportunity to say to me:

"Sammis, there are owners of skyscrapers, and there are agents and janitors of skyscrapers, but the elevator boy is the real boss."

"Yes, sir, he is," I humbly replied. "If he stands in with the tenant, that tenant is all right; if he don't stand in, then the tenant might as well hunt for another office. I want to stand in with you, Sammis."

"Yes, sir."

"You are a widow's son. Here's half a dollar to cheer your mother's lonely heart. You are trying to pay off the gigantic mortgage left on the estate by

THEN SHE STARTED IN TO WRECK THINGS, your father. Here's another half to assist you. This is simply preparatory, Sammis. Quarters and halves and dollars will chink and rattle around here and pass from me to you with astonishing frequency. All you've got to do is to look out for my interests."

"Yes, sir."

"Should a woman call here, Sammis—an oldish woman, with red hair and a sharp nose and a voice like a file?"

"You are out, of course. She's the woman who wants contributions for the heathen, and you don't want to be bothered."

"Exactly, Sammis! And you are a jewel!" he said as he patted me on the head. "I am always to be out when she calls. You are to discourage her from calling again. You may even hint that I have removed to Chicago or St. Louis. I see you closely scrutinizing my side whiskers, Sammis. Don't you like the color?"

"Yes, sir, but they are false."

"Ah, Sammis, another quarter for the gigantic mortgage. It's a little notion of mine to wear false whiskers for a few weeks, and nothing need be said about it. What we know we know, but we keep mum about it. You trust me; I trust you. We'll make that mortgage look sick in a month or two. Ta, ta, Sammis! I think we understand each other."

I thought so, too, and it was all right for two or three weeks. Mr. Rockaway didn't come down with any more halves, but I didn't lay that up against him. It was what he said and did that hurt my feelings. One day at the fourth floor a lawyer's boy called me a sawed off liar. I stopped the elevator to punch his head and thus was late getting up to answer a call from Mr. Rockaway. He was mad about it, and, taking me by the ear, he said:

"You trifling young monkey, but I'll have no more of this! I've a good mind to report you to the agent and have you bounced! What do you mean by such conduct?"

"I'm sorry, sir."

"That makes no difference. From this time out I shall have an eye on you, and you'll either walk chalk or get the bounce. Do you hear me?"

The iron struck home. From that hour I waited and longed for a red-headed, sharp nosed woman to appear. Luck was with me. On the afternoon of the fifth day she walked in and made straight for me and said:

"Bub, I'm looking for a man named Rockaway. I'm his wife."

"Have you got business with him?" I asked.

"I have—strict business. Is there such a man in this building?"

"There is a Mr. Rockaway here, but he's got side whiskers."

"Oh, he has! Well, I'll pull 'em off in three seconds! Take me right up."

I took her up. I am not a bad elevator boy at heart, but a boy in my position has got to maintain his dignity among the tenants. I held the elevator until I saw her enter room 68 and heard the first shock of collision, and then I had business elsewhere. What happened after that was told by the typewriter in Mr. Rockaway's office. When the redheaded woman bounced into the room, she first attacked those beautiful side whiskers, and they were wrecked in a breath. Then she started in to wreck things, and her language was English and her tones loud. She had the whole floor alarmed in two minutes, and the people who rushed in found the typewriter girl hiding under the desk and Mr. Rockaway on the floor and mixed up with broken furniture. It was lively while it lasted, and the redheaded woman had breath enough left to explain that the man on his back was her lawful husband, but had run away from her in Buffalo a year before. He had nothing to say in reply, and when the agent came up and told him that he had better look for other quarters he prepared to move. I didn't see him until the remains of his office furniture had been sent away. Then he rang for me to take him down. He had not resumed his side whiskers. There were scratches all over his face and neck, a lump on his jaw, and the wildness yet lingered in his eyes. I expected he would threaten or reproach me, but he didn't feel at all that way. On the contrary, there was sadness in his voice and gentleness in his hand as he reached out for a farewell shake and said:

"Sammis, I cannot blame you. I began right, but I did not carry out the programme. I started in to be a father to you and to help lift that gigantic mortgage, but later on I decided that bluff would be the game to work. You saw my bluff and went one better. It was you who brought her up?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you gave my side whiskers away?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, it was my own fault. Office gone, whiskers gone, typewriter gone and the redheaded woman camped on my trail. I am financially ruined, Sammis, and can't say that I have even saved my honor. However, here's my hand, and I bear you no ill will. If I die, I shall forgive you; if I live on, it will be a great moral lesson to me."

That afternoon Mr. Rasher, the agent called me into his office and said:

"Sammis, has your wounded dignity been healed?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then don't take any more redheaded women up in the elevator. Such little affairs as that in room 68 cause gossip and hurt our business."

Just at present our building is as quiet as a graveyard, and I hope it may long remain so. Something may bob up at any moment, however, but if it does it will not be the fault of SAMMIS, the Elevator Boy.

A Chicago Street Car Episode.

Passengers on an east bound Archer avenue car were thrown into a panic one night by the prospect of a holdup. At the sight of a wild eyed man jerking the bell rope and flourishing a huge revolver timid women sought shelter behind brave men.

Quiet was restored when the real cause of the disturbance was learned. Car 1811 had been about to cross the switch tracks at Ashland avenue when the conductor asked the man for his fare. He took a $5 bill and was about to make change when he saw the warning lights ahead.

"Wait a moment," he said and darted ahead with his lantern.

"Stop the car!" roared the excitable passenger, who saw the conductor and his $5 disappearing down the track. "He's got my money!"

The would be "holdup" man had reached the front door when the car flashed past the conductor, who was waiting for the rear platform. The passenger tried to jump from the car, but found it impossible because of the Archer avenue bridge structure. Then he made a mad dash for the rear door, where the conductor met him with a polite "Don't forget your change, sir."

THE SERGEANT'S GOLD.

It Never Reached the "Old Folks at Home."

Surgeon General Sternberg told a good story once of an experience he had in the civil war. He said that when he was going into the battle of Bull Run the Irish sergeant major of his regiment came to him with a big bag of gold coin weighing three or four pounds and said:

"Doctor, I know that I'm to be killed entirely, and I want you to take care of this money an see that it gets to the old folks at home."

There was no time to remonstrate or to make any other arrangement, and, dropping the bag into the surgeon's lap, the Irishman hurried away to his place at the head of the column. All through two bloody days Dr. Sternberg carried that bag of gold with his surgical instruments, and it was a burden and an embarrassment to him. He tried to get rid of it, but couldn't find any one willing to accept or even to share the responsibility, and he couldn't throw it away for the sake of the "old folks at home."

Toward the close of the second day the surgeon was taken prisoner. He lost his surgical instruments and his medicine case, but clung to the gold, and, making a belt of his necktie and handkerchief, tied it around his waist next to his skin to prevent its confiscation by his captors. During the long, hot and weary march that followed the goldpieces chafed his flesh, and his waist became so sore and blistered as to cause him intense suffering, but he was bound that the "ould folks at home" should have the benefit of that money and by the exercise of great caution and patience managed to keep it until he was exchanged with other prisoners and got back to Washington. There he found his regiment in camp, and one of the first men to welcome him was the Irish sergeant major, who was so delighted to learn that the doctor had saved his money that he got drunk and gambled it all away the first night.—Chicago Record.

IN RIP VAN WINKLE'S LAND.

The Portuguese Colonies in Africa in a Backward State.

The Portuguese colonies in Africa are the Rip Van Winkle's land of reality. After three centuries of white dominion they remain pretty much in the condition in which Da Gama and his bold successors left them.

Here is a picture of what trade means in the favored region of Cabinda bay, where there is a single white trader who occupies a house of three rooms, with a "shop" 20 feet by 8 attached. The place is stocked with puncheons of some vile stuff called "rum" which are exchanged for palm kernels.

Knots of natives from the interior villages with loads of kernels begin to present themselves at the shop by 6 a. m., and when the trader at last makes his appearance there is a noisy crowd of kernel sellers and thirsty hangers on.

The exchange of rum for kernels is quickly effected, and by 9 o'clock in the morning the entire population may be seen lying under the shelter of the cocoanut palms either stupidly drunk or noisily quarreling.

The mingled uproar and snoring lasts till about noon, when there is a sudden return to sobriety, and the crowd clears away to the village to collect the means for another carousal.

On a "good" day the trader at Cabinda bay gets rid of about 190 gallons of rum, and he avers that the scene described is repeated every day in the year.

Next to rum and "civilization" the greatest curses of West Africa are smallpox and the sleeping sickness. From this last no case of recovery has ever been known, and so contagious is it that in the native Christian community every communicant has a separate cup from which to partake of the sacramental wine.—London Leader.

Cheap Cats.

General Sir Herbert Chermiside was formerly a consul in Asia Minor. Once, in a weak moment, he sent a couple of beautiful Angora cats as a present to a lady in Constantinople. The lady was so pleased that she asked him to send some more. Sir Herbert gave his native servant some money and told him to go and buy two or three. Then came a demand for more cats from the consul's friends, and he gave his servant more money with which to buy cats.

This went on for two or three months, and the native servant waxen exceeding fat. One morning, however, the general, on coming out of the consulate, was surrounded by a host of infuriated veiled women, who besought Mohammed to curse him because he had stolen all their cats. It appears that the native servant had pocketed the money for himself and gone round with a sack and confiscated every cat in the place.

Fixed the Gas Company.

"I'll fix 'em," said a Capitol Hill citizen when he got his gas bill a couple of months ago. "Nine dollars and eighty cents, hey, when we've been out every night with the exception of two or three for the past month! I'll move that's all, at the end of the month, but if I don't make that gas meter of mine work over-time between now and the day I move it'll be because I run out of matches, that's all! I'll eat up about $40 worth of gas and then let the darned gas company keep the $5 I've got on deposit."

So from that evening on as soon as twilight fell the Capitol Hill man made a tour of the house and lit every jet from cellar to garret.

"I'll teach 'em to bunko folks!" he said to himself savagely as he started all the burners a-going.

Along toward the end of the month he and his wife picked out another house and made arrangements for moving. The Capitol Hill man was delighted when the gas bill read $29.00.

"This is one time they won't gouge me!" he shouted exultantly as he danced around with the bill in his hand.

Three days before the day set for moving his wife was taken ill, and of course the moving had to be declared off. She is only now convalescing. The Capitol Hill man paid the $29.00, and his friends are now telling him the story about the man who robbed his own trunk.—Washington Post.

Danny Lied.

Danny, who is an errand boy in a broker's office, got a job in the same office for his chum Harry. Danny set himself the task of making Harry appear to the best advantage during the probationary period of his job, and he found it necessary sometimes to use means that were only justified by the end.

Every afternoon Danny had to run with messages from one of the exchanges to the office, a distance of half a mile. When Harry came, Danny had to "break him in" to do this. The first day that he made the trip from the exchange Harry staggered into the office, gasping, with his eyes starting from his head. For a moment he couldn't speak. The broker looked at him in astonishment and said:

"You ran pretty fast, didn't you? How long did it take?"

"Four minutes and 17 seconds," Harry panted, looking at the clock.

"That's pretty good time," said the broker.

"No, sir," said Harry; "not very good. Danny says he does it every day in a minute and a quarter."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Avenged the Slight.

A rich Prussian banker who had bought his title of "von" by some means or other managed to squeeze his son into a regiment of the guards. Once admitted, he was of course treated by the other officers as one of themselves. One day the banker gave a splendid dinner, to which he invited through his son all the officers of the regiment save one, a very nice fellow, who, however, was not noble, having no aristocratic "von" prefixed to his name.

All accepted the invitation, perfectly unconscious that one of their number had been so badly treated. When, however, they took their seats at the table, the absence of their comrade was immediately noticed. Some one remarked the fact to the host, who said in a loud voice, "Ah, you see, we are going to be entre nous tonight, a really select party, you know."

"Then we must not disturb you," said the senior officer present, rising from his chair, and one after another the guardsmen solemnly filed out of the room, thus amply avenging the slight to which an officer of their regiment had been subjected.
